'No Substantial Aid Available' ...

Exon Disputes Luedtke's Prison Funds Statements

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Answering what he described as "totally irresponsible statements" by Sen. Roland Luedtke, Gov. J. James Exon Tuesday said there is no substantial federal aid available for prison construction in Nebraska.

I want to strenuously object to Senator Luedtke's attempt to mislead the people," Exon declared.

"There are no substantial federal funds we can locate for capital construction other than revenue sharing funds."

"There is no money available through the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA)."

And, the governor declared, there is no truth whatsoever to the senator's assertion that the state could jeopardize LEAA funding for prisons if it adopted my program.

Exon said he contacted both the Nebraska director and the Kansas City regional Director of LEAA Tuesday and found that not only is substantial funding not available, but "there are no such restrictions on prison size as alluded to by Senator Luedtke."

Luedtke had suggested Monday that Exon's proposal to build one 400-bed men's reformatory, instead of two smaller medium security facilities, could jeopardize possible federal aid funding for the project.

LEAA guidelines for such facilities place a planning limitation of 300 beds on correctional institutions, Luedtke said.

Exon said the penal consultants whose plan has been accepted by the Judiciary Committee, chaired by Luedtke, has recommended construction of facilities with 400 beds or more in other states.

An October 1972 plan for Maryland, drawn by Curtis and Davis of New Orleans, recommended a number of institutions with a population of 400 or more offenders, including a training center for 1,000, the governor said.

A 400-bed minimum security prison was included in an Idaho plan proposed by the same firm, Exon said.

"Senator Luedtke should recognize that 400-bed facilities are commonplace and are recommended by the very architects whose advice he seems to be following," the governor said.

Luedtke Monday said he opposes Exon's proposal for a 400-bed facility between Lincoln and Omaha. The senator supports the consultant's proposal for a 250-bed medium security facility in Lincoln, and another 200-bed unit to be constructed later in Omaha.

"I reject once again the $30.5 million package of capital construction projects prepared by the architects as irresponsible and having no real consideration either for the taxpayers of this state or the legitimate needs of the Penal Complex," the governor said.

Exon said his own $14 million proposal would do the job.

Answering Luedtke again, the governor said he still believes the consultant's plan was "based strictly to capital construction," based on cost projections.

"Senator Luedtke and his committee have been dilly-dallying on programs for improvement of corrections."

"So far as I know, they have not introduced any meaningful legislation this session regarding the implementation of programs. Senator Luedtke seems to be great on talk, but short on action."

Exon said he will "proceed to introduce our full program to the Legislature for its consideration and, hopefully, its passage."

Sole Lincoln Youth Hostel Opens Area To Travelers

By PATTY BEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

A group of Japanese students consulting an American Youth Hostel (AYH) guide a few years ago abandoned the idea of a hosteling trip across the United States because "no one lives in the middle."

They attributed the lack of hostels in the midwestern states to the belief that the area was barely populated.

To dispel such misconceptions and to promote hosteling, the Rev. Duane Hutchinson of the University of Nebraska Wesleyan Foundation, who had overheard the conversation of the Japanese students, spearheaded a movement in 1971 to bring youth hostels a bit closer to home.

Today such a hostel provides inexpensive overnight housing for the recreation-minded traveling through Lincoln. Located at 3357 Holdrege, the three-story Wesley Youth Hostel is owned by Wesley Foundation.

Serving as houseparents since the hostel's opening in the fall of 1971 are Triza Samuel and her husband Nelson, a doctoral candidate in zoology at UNL. As natives of India, the Samuels add an international touch to the hostel, which accommodates visitors from foreign countries as well as traveling Americans.

Lodging in the 22 dormitory-style bunk beds costs $1.50 per night and guests can stay for a maximum of three nights.

Rules Observed. All the rules, such as no smoking or drinking in the house, as well as a lights-out curfew of 11 p.m. have been well observed by the guests related Samuel.

A majority of the hostellers use the kitchen facilities to keep food costs at a minimum, said Mrs. Samuel, who usually points the way to the neighborhood grocery. Laundry facilities are also available at the hostel.

As helpful as the Samuels are to their visitors, the friendships developed during the short stays work two-ways. For example, a German family traveling through invited the Samuels to stay with them when the couple returns to India. Samuel also recalls a discussion with a girl from Northern Ireland which gave him more insight into the troubles that country has been having than all the newspaper articles he had ever read.

For the most part, guests at the Wesley Hostel have been American students traveling in two's and three's.

In the year and a half since its opening the Wesley Hostel has provided shelter for almost 100 travelers. The Samuels attribute the relatively small number of guests to lack of information about the hostel's existence. Only recently has the facility been listed in the AYH directory and the Samuels look forward to a busy summer of extending hospitality.

Hutchinson believes that the hostel is following the pattern of most new youth facilities and that it will get more use as the work gets around among hostellers.

He went on to say that if Wesley Foundation can get enough funds, badly needed improvements and repairs will be made on the hostel.

The idea of the city taking over the facility is not at all opposed by Hutchinson, whose main concern is that Lincoln continue to provide some kind of facility for young people traveling under their own steam.

He spoke of the old City Hall building, 9th and O as an ideal location for a hostel. Near to the buses and interstate routes, the structure would preserve an historical heritage that belongs to Lincoln, while providing an inexpensive source of shelter for hostellers.

Talks Set Wednesday

... In Rapid City

WASHINGTON (AP) — A settlement apparently has been reached in the one-month Indian dispute at Wounded Knee S.D. Sen. James S. Abourezk D-S.D. said Tuesday.

"I think we've got this thing settled," Abourezk said as he reported that Russell Means and Dennis Banks, leaders of the American Indian Movement have disappeared from Wounded Knee.

Abourezk said local Indian leaders of the Oglala Sioux tribe have taken control and are prepared to meet with federal negotiators Wednesday in Rapid City.

He said Marion Franklin, commissioner of Indian Affairs, will fly to South Dakota to negotiate an end to the conflict on the site of a historic massacre of Sioux tribesmen by the U.S. cavalry.

Abourezk quoted Franklin as saying that the remaining demands of the Indians at Wounded Knee all have been agreed to before and could easily be granted now.

"He doesn't see any snags at all," Abourezk said. Abourezk said his source for the information is Aaron De Sersa, a newspaper editor on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation.

"He's never lied to me yet," said Abourezk, who heads the Indian Affairs subcommittee of the Senate Interior Committee.

Abourezk said De Sersa told him the AIM leadership has been replaced by himself and three others: Francis White Wolf, Hildegarde Catches and Vern Long. He said they are making these demands all of which have previously been agreed to.

Means, Banks Leave Village

WOUNDED KNEE, S.D. (AP) — Two leaders of the militant Indians who are occupying this village slipped through rings of federal police and reservation Indians and escaped before dawn Tuesday, a member of the American Indian Movement said.

The AIM member, who declined to be named, confirmed earlier reports that Dennis Banks and Russell Means had escaped from the reservation village under cover of darkness and gunfire Monday night or early Tuesday. A federal marshal was seriously wounded in the shooting.

Richard Wilson, president of the Oglala Sioux tribe, told newsmen earlier Tuesday he had learned at a briefing that the two AIM leaders had escaped during what federal officials termed the heaviest exchange of gunfire in the month-long siege.

"The heavy fire last night was a diversion for Banks and Means to get away. I expect the whole thing will collapse within two days," said Wilson, whose followers threw up their own barricades several miles outside Wounded Knee on Monday.

Meanwhile, a federal official said the government will take a hard line with the occupation force from now on. "The fun and games are over as far as I'm concerned," Asst. U.S. Atty. Gen. Kent Frizzell told newsmen Tuesday.

A U.S. marshal has been seriously wounded. The longer it goes on, the less chance there is of negotiations. Death and injury have a tendency to incite or invite further violence," Frizzell said.

The LEA board "felt we should, in spite of the council action, go back and see what the (school) board has to say," Feistner said.

Feistner said if the LEA Council directive were viewed as a mandate, it would mean "we really can't negotiate."

Feistner is the chief spokesman for the three-member teacher negotiating team.

The LEA's last request seeks a 6.27% overall increase in salaries and fringe benefits. The last board offer was in the range of 4.87% to 5.04%.

Feistner noted that the school board team "hadn't reacted as yet to the proposal for 6.2%" and he added "I know we're not going to take 5.04%."

Many Lincoln teachers, he said, are incensed by the difference in pay scales between Lincoln and Omaha, where pay for the same experience and college-credit level is several hundred dollars higher.

The LEA Council action was prompted by a motion from a representative of the Southeast High School teaching staff, who said the LEA should stop compromising and take its case all the way to the State Court of Industrial Relations if necessary.

Late last week, it appeared that the council directive might bring negotiations to a halt.

But the LEA board, an elected executive committee of the organization, met Monday night and apparently decided it would consider the council motion a recommendation so the organization could continue to negotiate in good faith.

Negotiations were also a subject of discussion Tuesday morning during an executive session of the Lincoln school board.

What moves each side will take next will await the results of the informal "air-clearing" session set for Thursday.

Reds Observe GIs' Departure

SAIGON (AP) — Under the gaze of camera-snapping Viet Cong and North Vietnamese observers, a group of jubilant American GIs flew home Tuesday to begin the final withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam.

A dozen North Vietnamese and Viet Cong delegates to the Joint Military Commission were at the flight line. They poked with photographers for pictures of the first Americans to fly home in the massive three-day airlift.

I wonder if any of them want to come with us. We've got a few extra seats on the plane, cracked Navy Lt. James Holbach of Glen Burnie, Md., as he waited to board a homebound U.S. Air Force C-141 transport.

There didn't appear to be any takers, although a Viet Cong and a North Vietnamese delegate boarded the aircraft to make a final head count.

Look at our new allies, whispered Maj. Ed Sillis of Atlanta, Ga., as he watched the stern-faced Vietnamese Communists watching him. I feel great. I've been waiting for this moment for a long time.

It Deborah Fogg of Hartford, Conn., one of three Army nurses on the flight, smiled and said:

I'm short ... and getting shorter every second. Short is a military expression for the amount of time remaining before a GI boards his freedom.

bird" back to the States. "I'm glad we're getting out," she said. "But you come over here and you form attachments and that's what you miss most."

Eleven transports, military and commercial, carried 936 American troops from Saigon's Tan Son Nhut air base on Tuesday. Another 1,800 troops were scheduled to leave Wednesday and the final 2,500 Thursday.

As word that the U.S. troop withdrawal freeze had been lifted filtered down the ranks, hundreds of GIs streamed into Camp Alpha, the main processing center for departing servicemen.

The Alpha Club and its bar were doing a brisk business. Every table in the game room was taken with groups of poker and pinocle players. Dozens of GIs lounged around the swimming pool working on their tans.

79,543 Voters Registered For Election On Tuesday

An additional 12,313 people are registered to vote in next Tuesday's primary election compared to the number registered to vote in the last city election two years ago.

Unofficial figures in the County Election Commissioner's Office show that 79,543 people are registered to vote.

a chance to vote on a charter amendment raising council member's salaries to $4,000 per year.

The election commissioner's office figures also show that 38,297 people are registered Republican, 36,654 are registered Democratic and 4,592 are registered as independents.

Since 1971, the Democrats have picked up 7,712 registrations, while the Republicans picked up 2,518. An additional 2,090 registered non-partisan.

During the month of March, a total of 262 people registered to vote in the upcoming primary — 105 Republicans, 132 Democrats and 25 independents.

Washington (AP) — A former ambassador to Chile, Edward M. Korry, said Tuesday the United States maintained a "total hands off" policy in Chile's presidential election of 1970.

Korry told a Senate foreign relations subcommittee he personally favored a Chilean-conceived plan to block the election of President Salvador Allende by the Chilean Congress.

But, he said, "The United States gave no support to any electoral candidate."

He said also the U.S. government "did not seek to subvert or influence any member of the Chilean Congress, and no hard line was ever applied to Chile."

Korry said he directed U.S.

government officials in Chile to avoid political activity as Allende headed toward election.

And, he went on, no American businessman in Chile ever involved the U.S. embassy in any process to interrupt the election of Dr. Allende.

Korry declined to disclose the details of his communications from the State Department, but said he never received "a green light" from anyone to try to stop Allende from taking office.

The former ambassador's statement appeared to conflict sharply with the role attributed to him by two former American newsmen working in Chile for the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

The two, Hal Hendrix and Robert Berrellez, told an ITT vice president in a since-disclosed memorandum that Korry had "the green light" from the State Department to keep Allende from taking power.

The Sept. 17, 1970, memorandum was made public by columnist Jack Anderson along with other ITT documents prompting the subcommittee to investigate.

"I never assisted Hendrix or Berrellez," Korry testified. He said that, for an unrelated reason, he refused to see either after mid-September 1970.

Allende early that month finished first in the popular election, but without a majority. He was elected in October by the Chilean Congress. A year later the Marxist government appropriated the Chile Telephone Co., including ITT interests estimated by the American firm to be worth about $150 million.

Korry Denies Voting Influence Tried

Despite a rather adamant directive from the Lincoln Education Association Council, negotiators for the teachers organization are heading back to the bargaining table this week to continue discussions with Board of Education representatives.

The LEA Council, whose members are representatives of each building in the district, voted last week to instruct the teachers' negotiators to stick to their last salary request and add an "index" salary schedule demand.

Academy Awards Presented

Hollywood — The film world presented the Academy Awards with a score of Oscars and millions of dollars given out.

Marlon Brando Rejects
Oscar For Best Actor

... 'Godfather,' Liza Minnelli Win

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Marlon Brando was named the best actor of 1972 Tuesday night for his role as the gangland patriarch in 'The Godfather' but sent an Indian girl to the Music Center stage to refuse the Oscar.

Liza Minnelli was named the year's best actress for her role as the nightclub singer in 'Cabaret'.

The movie 'The Godfather' was selected by the Motion Picture Academy as the year's best film.

While the announcement that Brando was refusing the Oscar was greeted by jeers and boos, Miss Minnelli accepted gratefully, saying: 'Thank you very much for this award. You have made me very happy.'

The Indian girl told the filmland audience she was Shashen Littlefeather and had been sent by Brando with a speech too long for delivery.

He regretfully cannot accept the award because of the treatment of the American Indian in motion pictures and on television and television reruns and because of the recent happenings at Wounded Knee.

It was the second time in two years that an Oscar for best actor had been turned down. In 1971, George C. Scott announced that he did not want to be considered for an Oscar for his performance in 'Patton' but the Academy gave it to him anyway. His Oscar remains unclaimed.

In 1954 Brando won an Oscar for 'On the Waterfront' and appeared personally to accept the award.

World News

Fileen Heckart, the possessive mother of a young blind man in 'Butterflies Are Free' and Joel Grey, the devilish master of ceremonies of 'Cabaret' won Oscars as best supporting performers of 1972.

The Morning After from 'The Poseidon Adventure' was named the best song of the year. Veteran director Luis Buñuel's 'The Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie' was selected best foreign language film.

Bob Fosse was a surprise winner for best direction of 'Cabaret'. All of the advance awards had gone to Francis Ford Coppola for 'The Godfather'.

Fosse won two Tonys Sunday for his direction and choreography of the musical hit 'Pippin'. Fosse, a former hooper and actor, cracked after the events of the past few days: 'This may turn me into an optimist and ruin my life.'

The Godfather beat out 'Cabaret' for best screenplay adaptation, winning for Francis Ford Coppola, who also directed and Mario Puzo who wrote the novel.

The Oscar for best story and screenplay went to Jeremy Lerner.

Both supporting players won applause from the audience at the Music Center. Miss Heckart, who will be 54 Thursday, has long toiled in Broadway and Hollywood as a portrayer of wry likeable characters. Born in Columbus, Ohio, and a graduate of Ohio State, the actress said she hadn't expected to win. 'I thought it would go to either Jeannie Berlin or Shelley Winters.'

Miss Heckart had played her Butterflies Are Free role a year on Broadway and five months in London.

Now she said: 'I'm going to sit home and do needlepoint and garden and take care of the kids.'

Joel Grey, born in Cleveland and a 30-year veteran of show business at 40, gave his wife a big hug when his name was announced as winner.

Don't let anyone tell you this isn't a thrill, he glowed as he grasped his golden statuette.

Back stage he remarked that 'I didn't think I was going to win until my name was announced.'

Other awards included:

Best picture — 'The Godfather' (Coppola); Best director — 'Cabaret' (Fosse); Best actor — 'The Godfather' (Coppola); Best actress — 'The Godfather' (Coppola); Best supporting actor — 'The Godfather' (Coppola); Best supporting actress — 'The Godfather' (Coppola); Best screenplay — 'The Godfather' (Coppola); Best story and screenplay — 'The Godfather' (Coppola); Best foreign language film — 'The Discreet Charm of the Bourgeoisie' (Buñuel); Best song — 'The Morning After' (Fosse); Best music — 'The Poseidon Adventure' (Musica).

Obscenity Inquiry
Is Ordered By FCC

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Communications Commission Tuesday ordered an inquiry to find out whether broadcasters have carried obscene, indecent or profane material.

Acting in response to complaints, the FCC will investigate such programs as sex talks, shows and televised X-rated movies.

The inquiry will try to determine whether any station or cable system owner or operator or any principal agent or employee has engaged in obscene broadcasting, and if so, to what extent and in what circumstances.

The commission said it will probably hold the hearings behind closed doors.

The announcement did not name any stations or cable systems involved in the complaint.

The FCC has been receiving a flood of complaints about sex talk radio shows. There are programs with such names as 'Feminine Forum' and 'Girls' on which the interviewer usually a man chats with unidentified women who telephone in and discuss intimate details of their sex lives.

49 More U.S. POWs Fly To Philippines Base

CLARK AIR BASE, Philippines (AP) — Forty-nine more U.S. war prisoners fly to this Pacific check-in point Wednesday in the next-to-last day of POW releases from Communist jails.

They include nine Americans captured in Laos whose liberation came only after President Nixon held up withdrawal of U.S. forces from Vietnam. Coming out with them is a Canadian missionary who was working in a hospital for the Laotian poor when he was captured last October.

Those slated for release will join 32 U.S. prisoners of the Viet Cong who feasted in freedom Tuesday night after flying to Clark Air Base from Hanoi's Gia Lam airport.

"Today, 32 of us have regained our freedom and a chance to start again our life," said Col Benjamin H. Purcell, 45, of Columbus, Ga., to cheering newcomers at the Clark airport.

Nader Says Study Is GM 'Whitewash'

Washington (UPI) — Ralph Nader said Tuesday that a Senate staff study on the stability of the controversial Chevrolet Corvair was an attempt to "whitewash" General Motors.

The Senate subcommittee on executive reorganization made "every effort to give General Motors the benefit of every doubt," Nader said in a letter to Committee Chairman Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn.

The committee issued a report March 16 that it could find no evidence to support Nader's charge that GM had misled the committee over the stability of the Corvair. The staff in-

"In the years, our faith in our country, in our way of life and in our President has been unwavering. And we wish at this time to express our thanks to our President Nixon and to the American people for keeping faith with us."

Purcell was captured Feb. 8, 1968, when his helicopter crashed in South Vietnam's Quang Tri Province. As senior officer in the group, he spoke on their behalf.

"We are all well," he said. "We will be home soon. We owe you more than we can ever repay for the faith that you have had in us. But we shall try. An we ask you but one thing, and that is to keep the fort for just a few days longer."

The 32 began calls to home to their families almost immediately after their arrival at 6:52 p.m. — 5:52 a.m. EST. They feasted on chicken and steak and some were reported still eating at a snack bar shortly before midnight.

All were declared in reasonably good shape by doctors who gave them preliminary once-overs at Clark Hospital.

As the men waited in line for dinner in the hospital cafeteria, they received glasses of white and chocolate milk.

Emptying a glassful in a gulp, one returned prisoner said with a smile, "I'll take another one of those. That's just great."

Four flights are scheduled in the next two days to fly the remaining 116 Americans and one Canadian from Hanoi to Clark, where they will join the 32 for medical checkups, debriefings and a trip the rest of the way home within a few days.

The last 67 American POWs to be freed from captivity in Vietnam will board two hospital planes in Hanoi Thursday afternoon and return to Clark that night. They also are airmen downed in the 12½ months following December 1971.

Their release brings to 587 the number of American military and civilian prisoners freed by the Communists since Feb. 12.

Among the nine Americans to be turned over by the Pathet Lao rebels is a civilian who is one of the longest held prisoners of the Indochina hostilities. He is Ernest Carv Brace, 41, of Atlanta, Ga., who was captured in Laos May 21, 1965.

They will be vetted if they reach his desk, he vowed.

Besides complaining about the budget impact of the vetoed bill, Nixon said it would confuse lines of management responsibility and "create a hodgepodge of seven new categorical grant programs many of which would overlap and duplicate existing services."

The measure would have provided states and communities with grants to aid the physically handicapped and create new programs to help those with serious spinal injuries and severe kidney diseases.

Nixon Vetoes Rehabilitation Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon vetoed a $2.6-billion vocational rehabilitation measure Tuesday and warned Congress of a potential 15 per cent hike in personal income taxes if it passes bills that exceed his budget.

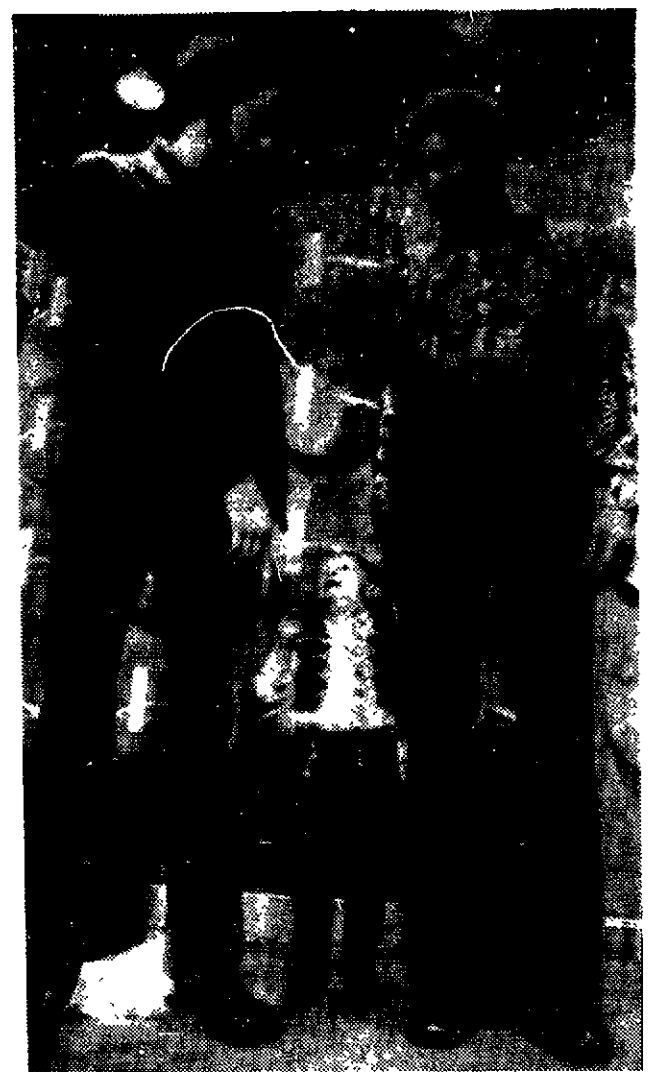

Nixon, citing for the first time the dimensions of a possible tax boost, said the vetoed authorization bill would increase his budget recommendations by $1 billion over a three-year period.

"If," he said in a message to Congress, "we allow the big spenders to sweep aside budgetary restraints we can expect an increase of more than $50 billion in federal spending before the end of fiscal year 1975.

"This would force upon us the unacceptable choice of either raising taxes substantially—perhaps as much as 15 per cent in personal income taxes—or inviting a hefty boost in consumer prices and interest rates."

Declaring that $1 billion "may seem only a small crack in the dam," he said more than a dozen other pending measures "also carry extravagant price tags."

Things Looking Up

Things are looking up for the man believed to be the smallest man in the world. Flanked by the New York Knicks' Harthorne Wingo, right, and John Gianelli, is Mihaly Mezaros, who is only 33 inches tall. Mezaros arrived at New York's John F. Kennedy Airport from Budapest, Hungary, to join the Ringling Bros., Barnum and Bailey Circus, which opened Tuesday at New York's Madison Square Garden.

Reservation Indians Exempt From State Income Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A unanimous Supreme Court today curtailed application of state income taxes to reservation Indians, but decided 6 to 3 that income of off-reservation Indian businesses enjoys no shield from state tax collectors.

The high court ruled in challenges to taxes levied by Arizona and New Mexico.

The Mescalero Apaches of New Mexico, a treaty-protected tribe, had challenged state taxes applied to the off-reservation Sierra Blanca Ski Enterprises which they own and operate.

The state had taxed the gross receipts of the ski resort. The Indian tribe paid that levy of $26,086 under protest, but refused a $5,887 tax on personal property purchased out of state.

The majority noted that federal law exempts from taxation Indian land held in trust by the United States, but said in an opinion by Justice Byron R. White that in the absence of clear guidelines, courts "will not imply tax exemptions and will not exempt off-reservation income from tax simply because the land from which it is derived ... is itself exempt from tax."

On the other hand, the personal property involved in the construction of ski lifts has become permanently attached to the land and therefore falls within the immunity from taxation.

The ski resort is located on national land. The rental under the lease, the price of the equipment and the construction of the resort were financed by the federal government.

In dissent, Justice William O. Douglas said the federal exemption protecting Indian rights in land covered the New Mexico Gross Receipts Act, approved by the majority.

"There is no more persuasive way to tax 'rights' and land than to impose an income tax on the gross or net income from those rights," wrote Douglas. He was joined in dissent by Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall.

Bill To Allow Hospitals To Nix Abortions OKd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday passed a bill, 72 to 19, that carries a provision to prevent the government from seeking to force doctors or private religious hospitals to take part in abortions or sterilizations.

The provision would prohibit such action if the refusal is based on religious belief or moral conviction.

It would apply to health personnel or institutions which participate in federally financed programs. Sponsors pointed out this covered most hospitals and physicians.

The provision adopted 92 to 1, was added by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, as an amendment to a bill extending for a year 45 federal health programs which expire June 30. Only Sen. William Fulbright, D-Ark., voted against the amendment.

The extension is strongly opposed by the Nixon administration which wants to terminate many of the programs including such major ones as Hill-Burton hospital construction grants and community mental health centers.

IN PERSPECTIVE

(Mr. Dobler is out of the city on business. His column will be resumed Tuesday, April 3).

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK — Postal service jokes have replaced Edsel jokes, according to Sen. Alan Cranston, the former International News Service reporter who now is part of the Democratic majority in the U.S. Senate.

The analogy is not quite apt. The Edsel may have appeared to many style buffs as an animated horse collar pulling a box-like vehicle, but it got you where you were going and frequently on time. That can no longer be said about moving a letter from one point to another in this country.

People here and there are only now receiving Christmas cards. The best way to extend Easter greetings to a friend is to mail the card right now. But don't try to speed things up by putting a 60-cent special delivery stamp on the envelope. That could only slow it down.

Miriam Ottenberg of the Washington Star-News has suggested that this year's Christmas stamp carry a slightly different kind of religious message, far from Stable, Manger and Star. She says, "O Lord, Deliver Me!" would be more appropriate.

Badgered by an endless briefing about how bad the mails have become, former Postmaster General Winton Blount erupted with, "All I want is a simple answer to a simple question: if it is neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night that is holding up the mail, then just what the hell IS the trouble?"

The trouble, Sen. Cranston swears, is that the quasi-private organization that was given the job of handling the mail a year and a half ago is kind of cwozy.

In an attempt to shave the traditional deficit with which mail carrying has always been plagued, it has moved too swiftly and in some cases the wrong directions, the Senator says. For example, he goes on, qualified old mail handlers by the scores have been pressured into retiring relatively early in life, thereby eroding the professionalism of mail-handling manpower. The subsequent hiring freeze has been "totally unrealistic." Cranston has some figures on that:

The freeze has forced the remaining employees into week-after-week overtime that impairs their efficiency. There are 63,470 fewer employees now than in 1970, but the volume has increased by 2,300,000,000 pieces of mail! One example is California, where 400 collection boxes were eliminated in an economy move between July 1971 and July 1973, a period during which the state's population increased by 400,000.

The crackdown on the costs of carrying and delivering the mail does not seem to have invaded very far into the hierarchy of the business, according to Congressional critics. Rep. H. R. Gross (R., Iowa) conducted a survey which showed that whereas the old Post Office Department had eight assistant postmasters general, the new Postal Service Corporation has 17, plus a new category of five senior assistant postmasters general. Twenty officers earn $42,000 a year or more. Gross says that's as many high-paid executives as are authorized for the entire Federal executive branch.

Everybody's in favor of automation as a means of speeding up the mails and bringing about that happy day when "today's mail is delivered today," Cranston says. But he is dismayed at the way the new corporation seems to be going about it. Before the first automated mail center could prove that the nuts and bolts and electronic sensors really worked, he says, the Postal Service committed itself to a $5 billion construction program for more centers like it.

Women Workers Fit Old Slave Definition

WASHINGTON — A woman is only 58 per cent of a man on the American payroll — and that is 2 per cent worse than the old constitutional definition of a slave as three-fifths of a person.

The grim story of job discrimination on the basis of sex was explained in this startling fashion recently by the magazine Psychology Today. A special survey showed that on the average a woman gets $3,458 less a year than a man with equal qualifications, and is paid less than a man at every occupational level.

A similar study by the Chase Manhattan Bank, in its current bi-monthly economic report, points out that "job bias costs American women tens of billions a year in foregone wages and costs the nation as a whole billions more in lost economic output."

Nearly 30 million women now hold jobs — 41.6 per cent of the female population over the age of 16. And officially sex discrimination in most jobs is now illegal. But employers, from Ma Bell to the Federal Government, have been slow to get the message.

Part of the problem is that women as well as men have only recently become fully aware of the way typical hiring and promotion practices, to which they had been conditioned operate to hold down women workers.

President Nixon included a chapter on the economic role of women with his economic report to Congress for the first time this year. But its original draft by the Council of Economic Advisers had to be drastically rewritten after women complained that it assumed most women work for pin money or for the fun of it.

In fact, 65 per cent of all working women either are unmarried or are married to men who make less than $7,000 a year. Husband-wife families numbering 2.5 million depend on the wife's earnings for over one-half the family income.

What to do to hasten fair play in the business and professional world and dispel myths about a frivolous female attitude toward work was the subject of a unique conference here last week. Sponsored jointly by the Ladies Home Journal and National BankAmericard, it attracted nearly 300 delegates.

As is the case with the Equal Rights Amendment and most other issues of the women's movement, there was much agreement about the problem and little about how to end it. Dr. Juanita Kreps, Duke University professor of economics, identified the enemy as the men who set up and enforce the hiring and training programs that exclude or severely limit women.

Jayne Baker Spain, vice chairperson of the U.S. Civil Service Commission, thought that the big handicap was not men but women — those who are already on top and won't help others, those who are housewives and think other women should be too, and those who are too timid to protest when employers treat them unfairly.

Dr. Bernice Sandler, a member of the advisory committee on the economic role of women, said the enemy was neither men nor women but the "rigid stereotypes" of women as creatures fit only for supplemental and secondary roles.

The conference didn't settle anything, but it does represent progress in a small way.

Top Council Candidates

Paring a list of 18 City Council candidates down to the three for whom voters might cast their ballot, or even down to the six who will be nominated, is no easy task. Nor can it be done with total objectivity.

There are some issues which are important in the present race for City Council but even in this it is somewhat risky to pin candidates to any two or three single things. What voters ought to seek in a candidate is a background that contains some qualifications for the office, reasonable intelligence and as little conflict of interest as possible.

Beyond that, voters might consider such things as geographic, socio-economic and ethnic representation. Considering all factors, The Star would recommend 10 of the 18 candidates for office. These would be Bob Muggy, Max A. Denney, Harry S. Allen, Nancy Childs, John L. Robinson Jr., Emmett Junge, Wilma C. Street, Sue Bailey, William R. Thierstein and Marilyn McLaughlin.

Others in the contest include Jack Hunter, in real estate, John V. King, investment company account executive; James N. Bourne, businessman; Charles H. Kitchen, retired plasterer; Harold Sheldon, an employee of American Stores; Norman L. Peterson, vice president of Lincoln Production Credit Association; Ray E. Judds, contractor; and J. James Plant, self employed, Lincoln Legal Research.

Out of the 10 candidates recommended, The Star's nomination list of six would include Denney, Allen, Childs, Robinson, Junge and Bailey. While six candidates are to be nominated for the May general election, voters will cast their ballot for only three.

In setting upon only three candidates, The Star's list includes Allen, in administration with the University of Nebraska; Junge, former business executive and past city safety director, and Robinson, a senior law student at the University of Nebraska.

Fortunately, the list of council candidates includes many who could be expected to do an honest and creditable job if elected.

Yorty's Uphill Battle

Four years ago Sam Yorty, running for a third term as mayor of Los Angeles, finished a poor second in the primary election to Tom Bradley, a black city councilman and former policeman.

Yorty waged a hard-hitting campaign — some say it was a racist campaign — for the runoff and defeated Bradley in what most observers in Los Angeles agreed was a stunning upset.

Today, Yorty, the former Nebraskan who went west after graduating from Lincoln High School finds himself in a similar position.

The polls predict another Bradley-Yorty runoff following next Tuesday's mayoral primary. The incumbent mayor, picking up strength among voters who view themselves as conservative, trails Bradley, who is scoring heavily with blacks and liberal whites. It is somewhat a tribute to the political strength of both candidates that they are comfortably ahead — at least the polls say so — of former California Assembly Speaker and Democratic power Jess Unruh and a popular former police chief, Tom Reddin. A host of other candidates trail the leaders.

Bradley is encouraged by the recent poll and an earlier one that showed his name is recognized now by over 95% of the Los Angeles voters — much better name recognition than four years ago, and even then he was regarded as the favorite. Bradley also feels that Angelinos are fed up with Yorty government, that four more years would be too much for them to take.

Yorty, for his part, might have hurt his image by his hit-and-miss, lackluster, disappointing mini-campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination last year.

But running for president is entirely different than running for mayor. Los Angeles voters have been kind to Yorty even though he is viewed with alarm by the establishment media and other powers-that-be.

If he reaches the runoff, which it looks as if he will, Yorty should pick up much of the Reddin vote while Bradley will unfortunately be haunted by the reluctance of many whites to elect a black mayor. Law and order, "conservative" mayors govern most of the nation's big cities, Yorty, the native Nebraskan, although now trailing in the polls, can't be counted out in his run at a fourth term as mayor of his adopted city.

Another Turn In Arms Race

LONDON — "The Russians are really interested." That is the word beginning to be heard from some men concerned with the problem of nuclear arms control. They are talking about serious Soviet interest in negotiating limitations on MIRVs.

MIRVs are multiple independently targetable re-entry vehicles — the weapons system in which a single missile carries a number of warheads each individually aimed. MIRVs present the biggest threat of another turn in the spiral of the arms race, and the most difficult problem in the second Soviet-American strategic arms talks.

The threat and the problem lie in a destabilizing fact: the United States has MIRVs — two systems tested and hundreds of missiles deployed in submarines and on land — while the Soviet Union is not known even to have tested them. It is the nature of the arms race that such an imbalance, or the fear of it, brings a response in the form of new weapons.

After the first SALT agreement last May without any provisions on MIRVs, it was generally assumed that the Soviets would not want to talk about limitations until they had their own MIRVs and had tested them. Then, last fall, there were reports that the Russian side had brought the matter up at the preliminary sessions of SALT 2. Since then Sovietologists have noted a good deal of talk about MIRVs in Soviet military journals — a sure sign, as one put it, that a subject is ready for discussion. Two weeks ago the second round of SALT 2 opened in Geneva, and through the secrecy of those talks are coming intimations that the Russians have put forward a MIRV proposal.

In the arms control world, none of this has brought great joy. There is much skepticism about Soviet intentions. The technical obstacles to a new agreement limiting offensive nuclear weapons are formidable. And there are doubts about the attitude of the Nixon administration which has largely dismantled the SALT 1 negotiating team.

Nevertheless, the guess here is that the MIRV problem will be tackled in due course in meaningful negotiations. To say why requires a tour first through the difficulties, a necessarily sketchy one in the limits of a newspaper column.

The first SALT agreement, in addition to limiting missile defense, imposed an interim, five-year ceiling on the number of offensive missiles — but not on the weight or number of their warheads. These so-called qualitative matters, the actual destructive capacity of the weapons, are what are to be negotiated in SALT 2.

The U.S.S.R. has much larger missiles, with the ability to carry enormous payloads — 25-megaton bombs. It came out of SALT 1 with an edge in the number of missiles and the total weight they could carry — a fact that Sen. Henry Jackson and many experts want to see corrected in SALT 2. Moreover, in recent months the Soviets have tested improved missiles that should have greater accuracy.

All this suggests to some observers that if they are moving to negotiate about MIRVs, the Soviets are trying to hold the United States back in the technology where it is superior, without giving up anything real themselves. As one British expert put it, "it is a question of size against sophistication. They have one, and they want you to give up the other."

Such feelings are undoubtedly strong in the Pentagon, where there is a tendency to think that the U.S. is safer in a technological arms race because it can win that. There have been reports of strong military pressure to expand the MIRV conversion of America's land-based Minuteman missiles from the 550 now scheduled to the entire force of 1,000.

But those doubts and pressures do not foreclose an American effort to negotiate MIRV limitations. It could be a healthy self-interest that is making the Russians think about stopping a MIRV race, namely

JAMES RESTON

The Nixon Dilemma

SAN FRANCISCO — On the west coast these days, President Nixon is riding high, but even many of his strongest supporters here are troubled by the increasingly damaging evidence in the Watergate case.

In the past, this has been dismissed in the President's home state as the usual dirty tricks of national politics, and anyway something remote from the President. But James McCord's testimony that perjury was committed in the trial of the Watergate Seven, that others were involved and that he was afraid to tell his story to the F.B.I. has raised some new questions here as elsewhere.

Also, the mood here is more critical of the President than it was at election time. The steep rise in prices, the devaluation of the dollar, the threat of gasoline rationing, the overturning of the California equal education law by the Nixon Court and the President's continuing battles with the Congress and the press have all hurt the administration, despite the cease-fire in Vietnam.

How could it be, even Nixon supporters ask, that an administration which has been so cautious, shrewd, and successful in dealing with world affairs could also be so reckless, awkward and even stupid in dealing with human affairs?

The answer to this seems to be that politicians have a way of doing fairly well on major questions and then stumbling into trouble over secondary issues.

This was Harry Truman's problem. Harry usually did all right on the big things and messed up the little things.

President Kennedy came into office as the darling of the young, and the symbol of the coming age, but he staggered into the Cuban Bay of Pigs disaster, and never quite recovered from it.

In the 1972 presidential election, Sen. George McGovern, the Democratic candidate, picked Sen. Tom Eagleton of Missouri as his vice presidential running mate, and he was never quite able to explain effectively why he picked him or why he dumped him.

Now President Nixon, who wants to concentrate on the monetary, trade, inflation and security problems in the world, finds himself dealing instead with the secondary issues of campaign financing and the Watergate. The Committee to Re-elect the President didn't have to get involved in elaborate schemes to raise and conceal illegal money in the last campaign. They had all the money they needed. They were well financed, and well ahead of the Democrats from the start, and probably would have ended up with a substantial surplus even if they had played the game straight.

The Watergate burglary is an even better example of avoidable stupidity. Leaving the law and the clumsiness of the burglars aside, what rational argument could be made for the Nixon re-election committee taking such spectacular risks, or assuming that their men wouldn't confess if they were caught?

Now of course the burglars are talking. James McCord, facing jail or telling the truth, is beginning to confess about the political pressures on him to take the rap in silence, and report on the other people involved in the conspiracy.

L. Patrick Gray, the President's appointee as head of the F.B.I., who also has the problem of saving himself or saving the administration from charges of political deception, is obviously concentrating on saving his own neck. When he was under pressure from the White House, Gray told everything to Nixon's aides. Now, when he is under pressure from Congress, he is telling everything, or almost everything, to the senators.

Nobody out here is saying that the President himself knew about the slippery campaign finances or the Watergate conspiracy, but California knows him as a political alley fighter and the longer the Watergate case goes on in the courts and Congress, the more suspicious people here are.

Also, those who know the President best in this part of the country know how much he insists on control and discipline of his staff, and they therefore find it hard to believe that the Watergate Seven could set up anything as daring as an espionage ring among the Democrats without the knowledge of somebody close to the President.

Even this atmosphere of suspicion, which the White House has encouraged by its refusal to try to clear up the charges, is bound to hurt the President.

He has welcomed and even provoked confrontation with the Congress over the control of appropriations. He has demanded an absolute shield against formal testimony in Congress by members of his executive staff, while opposing any such shield for members of the press — all this while running into more and more trouble with prices at home and trade abroad.

Against this background, even his popularity in bringing the troops and prisoners back from Vietnam has been hurt, and the longer the Watergate case goes on the more he is likely to be in trouble even in his home state.

Not A Closed Matter

Bayenna, Neb. — In both the January five-part series in The Star and your March 24 editorial, you present fluoridation as a completely closed matter. Instead of facts, you cast aspersions on those who oppose LB449 which would take away the rights of many especially marginally healthy children and older persons to avoid it if they choose. The cumulative effects of a poison which is both a nerve gas and a rat poison. You have not yet mentioned that LB449 might seriously threaten the financial resources of each community to pay the $4,000 per well costs of installing fluoridation equipment on each of the hundreds or thousands of wells in Nebraska communities.

In your recent editorial, you said "fluoridation is another public health measure that should not be discretionary, but rather, ought to be provided arbitrarily in consideration of its great benefit to all people." The U.S. Public Health Service back in 1950 took the same arrogant position when they concluded fluoridation safe before they had completed half of their 10-year study in Newburgh, N.Y. They have since refused to consider any scientific study that reflects unfavorably on fluoridation. Ralph Nader even accuses them of paranoia on the matter.

The chief of the Bureau of Health Service in New York reported at the end of the 10-year study that there were almost 50 per cent more "dental defects" in Newburgh than in Kingston, the control city without fluoridation in the test.

Since then, there have been hundreds of scientific studies which prove sodium fluoride is not safe at any level in water. If you would read these studies I do not see how you could sincerely say fluoridation is of "great benefit to all people."

You overstate the case when you say "all people." Surely you would admit that there is evidence it might be harmful to some people, so please do not urge the legislators to require all communities to add this poison to water. Let the people who will be affected vote to do it to themselves if they so choose.

All Life Has Value

Lincoln, Neb. — I agree with the editor of The Lincoln Star (March 24, 1973) that it is an "interesting observation that men are writing the abortion laws." Prior to the Supreme Court seven-man decision that the unborn child is not a person in the terms of the 14th Amendment, in the last election both North Dakota and Michigan voters defeated statewide referendums which would have allowed abortion on demand in North Dakota and abortion on demand during the first 20 weeks of pregnancy in Michigan. Women have voted in North Dakota and Michigan since 1920 and the passage of the 19th Amendment. In Nebraska, women greatly outnumbered men at the recent hearing on Legislative Bill 286. Approximately 350 of the 400 presents at the hearing opposed the Supreme Court decision.

I disagree that it is the men who suffer nothing one way or another in the question of abortion. Perhaps the editor of The Star has never spoken with the fathers of aborted children, but those who have know the effect abortion has had on many of them. Certainly abortion has an equal effect on the fetuses of either sex. Although the sex of a fetus is not a determining factor in an abortion decision, there are at least as many unborn males aborted as there are females.

The resolution submitted from the Unicameral Public Health and Welfare Committee asking Congress to work on a new U.S. constitutional amendment which would guarantee that no human life will be denied protection of law or deprived of life "is to be commended. We all know that the fetus is alive and that it is human. Society must now decide whether that human life has value and whether or not life is to be protected under the Constitution."

MRS. ROY A. LOUDON, JR.

Anti-Abortion

Lincoln, Neb. — God says in the Ten Commandments, "Thou shalt not kill." Did He just mean not to kill other people or all people? The unborn is as close to God as you and I, maybe closer. So the unborn does not look like a human does that give us an excuse to kill. The way I understand the law of our country is that it is against the law to kill.

I think it is really unfair the unborn does not even get a chance to defend itself. I ask you when you have time — isn't that like all Americans, when you have time? Well, as I was saying, make time and ask yourself: Why does God give us children? I am just a seventh grade kid who knows we are making a mistake, and I think that something should be done.

Leahy Urges Efforts To Revitalize Towns

Fairbury — Beaming over the recent acquisition of two new garment industries, Fairburians were told Monday night that the "growth-center city concept" could be the salvation of rural America.

Patrol Accepting Applications

Applications are being accepted for the State Patrol, Supt. James E. Kruger said Tuesday.

The number of candidates will depend on the existing vacancies caused by retirement, normal attrition and reassignment.

Applicants must be high school graduates between the ages of 21 to 25. They must be in excellent physical condition and at least five feet eight inches tall.

The basic training program will open Sept. 17 at the patrol's training center at Lincoln Air Park.

But, said Mayor Eugene A. Leahy of Omaha, such regional development "will take a lot more than lip service." He addressed a record 240 persons at Fairbury's annual Chamber of Commerce banquet meeting.

Claiming that professional people are "least involved" in Chamber work, the Omaha official called for full citizen participation to save village-size communities. He particularly accused educators, attorneys and clergymen of demonstrating little interest.

Bangladesh Shipping In Bad Shape

CHITTAGONG, Bangladesh (AP) — Shipping in Bangladesh is a struggle. The token fleet tangles with repair problems, harbors are choked with sunken warships and cargos are caught in bureaucratic mix-ups.

Two of four Soviet-donated vessels that form a major part of the fleet are idle because technical manuals are written in Russian and spare parts are needed from Moscow.

Even when parts come and instructions are clarified, there is some doubt how useful the ships will be.

"The coasters are good for crushing ice, not for cruising the waters of the Bay of Bengal," said a Bengali sea captain. Shamsuddin Khan, head of the government-owned shipping corporation, agrees that the vessels

"Asking business leaders alone to solve community problems has been failing," Leahy stated.

He said federal assistance should be available to encourage small communities. Noting that five of seven high school graduates pass up college, he suggested more technical education as a boost to "adequate employment."

"We must upgrade the dignity of men who use their hands," he continued. "They're the people who made this country great."

Both outgoing President Darrel Junker and his successor, Richard Fry, alluded to current industrial progress. Besides the anticipated summer opening of a 350-employee Kellwood plant, it was noted that Swinger Inc. expects to double its 60-member work force.

Fry said the Chamber should be particularly concerned about housing, downtown improvement, parking and "keeping the shopping center downtown."

perform better in a cold climate.

The fleet also has a hand-me-down freighter bought from India, and four other chartered ships. But most industries import goods on British or Indian ships. The United Nations — coordinator of relief operations since Bangladesh was created through the 1971 India-Pakistan war — uses vessels from many nations.

Over the next decade, the shipping corporation plans to increase its fleet to 43 ships, paid for from expected profits.

A big part of the Bangladesh shipping problem is the tie-up in the harbors.

Brazil's Record Uneven

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Brazil's military-run government is about to begin its 10th year in power.

Its success in getting the country back on its feet financially is as apparent as its record of political arrests.

The armed forces took over Latin America's biggest country on March 31, 1964, ousting an inept left-leaning civilian administration described as leading the nation to bankruptcy and communism.

Governments under three military presidents since then have sparked a remarkable economic boom but also have suppressed 100 million inhabitants' basic civil rights.

Hundreds — some say thousands — are in jail convicted of or awaiting trial on charges of endangering national security.

Some of these prisoners belonged to underground guerrilla groups that robbed banks and attacked policemen in attempts to overthrow the government. Many are simply citizens suspected of being Communist sympathizers.

Suspected enemies of the government often never make it to jail. During the past 12 months nearly 30 alleged subversives were killed while resisting arrest, according to authorities.

Censorship continues to be strict. This month the newspaper Jornal da Tarde in Sao Paulo published a cake recipe on its editorial page after censors ruled out a critical editorial. Had the paper run the vetoed piece, federal police would have seized it as soon as it came off the presses. A new Rio-based weekly newspaper called Opinio frequently appears with entire columns blacked out.

One of Brazil's most popular television emcees, Flavio Cavalcanti, was kept off the air for 60 days on grounds his Sunday network variety show offended morality. There is talk the government plans to ban all live broadcasting so censors can first view all programs on videotape.

The No. 1 no-no on the censors list is speculation about who the next president will be. The current president retired Gen. Emílio G. Médici 67 has said that such debate can't start until July — nine months before the end of his five-year term.

When Médici was inaugurated he told Brazilians he hoped to have democracy definitively installed before leaving office.

I know what the people are thinking, the president said in 1969. Brazil is still a long way from being a developed nation living under a regime we cannot consider fully democratic.

The National Council of Bishops in this most populous of Roman Catholic countries says there is practically no freedom for opposition politicians, labor union leaders or peasant farmers.

Despite all this, one easily discerns popular support for Brazil's government. Cheers greet Médici at his public appearances throughout the country. All indications are that the regime is basically honest, despite a recent embarrassing kickback scandal in army and air force. It has built highways and brought electric power, schools and low-cost public housing to areas that got nothing under democratic administrations.

Brazil's hard currency reserves, exports and internal tax collections are at record highs. Census figures show that the economic boom has benefited mostly big business and people who already were well off, however.

An example of the gap between rich and poor.

Meatpacking magnate Tio Mau reportedly paid 40,000 cruzeiros or $6,700 for the presidential box at the Rio Municipal Theater's carnival ball this year. A worker in one of his plants, earning the federally set minimum wage, would need 12 years to make that much money.

The government defends its economic policies by saying that if it simply gave things to poor people, Brazil would stop growing and would wind up dividing misery. Government economists insist that Brazil must develop from the top of the ladder down.

POSTCARD

Stan Delaplaine

San Francisco — I think my heart is beating in waltz time. A little swooping hesitation step.

This comes from reading the health magazine in the doctor's waiting room.

By the time the nurse says, "Doctor is ready now," I have a whole set of new symptoms.

I could diagnose myself. Save the doctor bill.

HEALTH TIP

FROM THE NEBRASKA MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

Since 1955, when the Salk polio vaccine was introduced, polio has occurred primarily in areas or neighborhoods where the vaccine has not been fully utilized, says the Nebraska Medical Association.

The incidence of poliomyelitis in the United States is at an all-time low.

Small, localized outbreaks of paralytic polio will exist as long as many persons do not care or do not realize the necessity of adequate immunization.

Two different polio vaccines are available. The Salk vaccine is a suspension of the three types of polio virus which have been killed. The Sabin or oral polio vaccine is live polio virus which has been modified sufficiently in the laboratory so it will not cause the disease.

The NMA points out that there is a separate oral vaccine for each of the three types of polio virus, and one oral vaccine that contains all three types.

The Salk vaccine is injected as early as six months of age. Some manufacturers combine the Salk vaccine with a child's DPT shot for a four-in-one shot. Booster shots every two years thereafter are recommended in order to maintain immunity.

The Nebraska Medical Association urges you to make sure you keep your family's immunization current against polio and other communicable diseases by consulting your family physician.

I said: "I just came in for a flu shot. But let me tell you the funny thing about my clock."

We had a little earthquake the other night. The house shook. The dishes rattled. I looked up. The chandeliers were swinging.

If you live in earthquake country, you learn to look at chandeliers. If they aren't swinging, it wasn't a quake.

More likely a plane overhead making a sonic boom.

We didn't have earthquakes when I was running sticks along a picket fence. It wasn't earthquake country. We had tornadoes in the hot summers.

"When you see a twister cloud, run for a storm cellar," said grandma. "The wind'll whip you off quicker than a wink."

All the houses had storm cellars. Lightning rods stuck above the peaks of the houses. We went to church each Sunday.

Thus the fury of Nature was held at bay.

Shake, rattle and roll! When the quake rocked us, I said: "Stand in a doorway." A door frame is supposed to hold up.

Keep bricks and debris from landing on your head.

Thing is, when a quake comes I am never prepared for it. By the time I get to a doorway, the thing is over. You have to be a fatalist if you live in quake country.

"Those born to be hung are never struck by lightning," said grandma.

We live right on top of an earthquake fault. Two pieces of land sliding in different directions.

Gabriel, blow that horn!

After the first shake, I went around and checked the gas connections. Sometimes a quake will shake them loose at the joints.

I went to the neighbors. I said: "Can I borrow a flashlight?"

They said: "It's out of batteries. Use a match."

I said: "I didn't reach this ripe age by checking for gas leaks with a lighted match."

I went down in the dark and sniffed. Didn't smell anything.

So to bed. Wondering how we manage to live through it all.

"Only those with an easy conscience sleep well at night," said grandma. "Say your prayers now and go to bed."

A writer in a health magazine says we will have a wet spring.

He has been watching the squirrels. Squirrels know a lot about weather forecasting.

I think the writer is some kind of a nut. Who can depend on a squirrel's appetite?

I really shouldn't read that health magazine. But all the doctor had was some old copies of Life that I'd already seen.

Burnt toast is bad for you says the magazine.

When I think of all the years— "Eat the crusts," said grandma. "It makes your hair curly."

Grandma was preparing me for an early grave.

I didn't want curly hair. I wanted straight hair like the silent cowboys in the silent movies we saw Saturday afternoon.

The hero had straight hair and he kissed his horse good-by.

The movie flickered and the words appeared on the screen: "Good-by, Old Paint. I must mosey for Laredo."

Biharis Learning Language Of Bangladesh For Survival

Mohammedpur, Bangladesh (AP) — The Biharis of Bangladesh have found a weapon to use in their fight for survival in a country where they so far are neither wanted nor trusted.

After India was partitioned in 1947 the minority Bihari Moslems isolated themselves socially, politically and culturally from their brother Bengali Moslems. They lived in their own areas and spoke Urdu, the language of West Pakistan.

Now they are learning Bengali, the official language of Bangladesh, the new nation that used to be East Pakistan.

"We are teaching Bengali because it is the mother tongue of this country, and everyone should learn it if they want to stay here," said Mohammed Ayub, a resident of the Mohammedpur refugee camp populated by about 125,000 Biharis.

Ayub, who knew Bengali because he once worked as a railroad ticket inspector, is a teacher at the camp.

Although Bengali classes so far have reached only a very small percentage of the estimated 500,000 Biharis living in refugee camps in nine centers around Bangladesh, foreign relief officials are pleased with the developments.

"It is the first step toward integration," said one Swiss delegate of the International Committee for Red Cross who helped organize the first Bengali classes here. He recalls:

"I told them if you don't learn Bengali, I will cut off food rations for the teacher. One day I did for a day, and the classes were resumed quickly."

Red Cross officials believe integration is the easiest — and perhaps only — solution to the Bihari problem.

Most Biharis can only remain in Bangladesh.

The Bangladesh government, which distributed a questionnaire among the Biharis last summer, said at least 260,000 expressed a preference to live in Pakistan. But Pakistan has said it has no room for the bulk of the Biharis.

India has expressed no interest in taking any, although they originally migrated from various Indian states including Bihar, from which the community takes its name.

Prime Minister Sheikh Mujibur Rahman of Bangladesh has said those Biharis willing to integrate into the Bengali society will be able to live freely in the country — but that Bangladesh should not be expected to keep those who want to live in Pakistan.

Foreign agencies hope that Sheikh Mujib will find it palatable after Wednesday's parliamentary elections to take some initiative in absorbing the Biharis. They have lived in bamboo huts in refugee camps since fleeing their homes and jobs after the 1971 war, fearing retaliation from the Bengalis because some Biharis collaborated with the Pakistan army.

The Biharis have job skills — jute managers, clerks, railroad supervisory personnel, telephone technicians — that are in short supply among the Bengalis. This is because the Pakistan government favored the Biharis with such jobs.

Bihari representatives in the refugee camps say several thousand have managed to escape to Pakistan.

I've been calling the Parks and Recreation Department for at least a year and a half trying to get some dead trees removed from a vacant lot next to ours. The land is low and we have permission to fill it in but can't until these trees are removed. Can you speed them up?
—D.K., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: As you already know, there is a time-consuming condemnation procedure involved here. But that is all accomplished now. It's been especially slow since the land owner in this case is an Arkansas resident.

But records show that the project has been awarded through bids to a Lincoln arborist who has scheduled to work for sometime in the next two weeks. We have solicited the word of Assistant City Forester Jim Johnson that he will check with the firm to see if he can't rush them just a bit since the well-being of your basement is at stake here.

It may be of interest to you that the city will pay the arborist and then that fee will be added to your absentee land owner's taxes next year.

There is a beautiful picture in the foyer of the Christian Record Braille Foundation building at 4444 So. 52nd here in Lincoln. Lately it has not been lighted. I wonder why. It is so beautiful to see. Could you tell me who painted this picture?
—Anne McGill, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The 19' by 5' painting by California artist Joe Maniscalco has recently only been lighted on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights for economy reasons.

But when another admirer like yourself discovered that the work was only occasionally lit, he offered to pay for constant evening illumination. The foundation accepted the gift and you should be able to find the picture lit each night soon. The painting needs no lighting during the day, according to foundation personnel.

I am handicapped in the use of my legs but want very much to expand my professional horizons by learning to drive a car. Vocational rehabilitation people have said they will help me convert a car to hand controls if I get one but I would like to try it out first before I go all the trouble and expense. Can you find me an instructor and a car to try out?
—G.D., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: We talked to Henry E. Smith, national service officer with Disabled American Veterans. He says he may know or someone who might be willing to assist you. Will you call Smith and let him know the full specifics of your situation?

In the meantime, are there ACTION LINE readers who can help with this problem? Call or write us if you can.

How long before someone puts a stop to the inconsiderate clods who insist on walking across the statehouse lawn? They are making paths in the grass and spoiling the appearance of the lawn especially on the northeast corner.
—S.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The people who look after the grounds at the Capitol don't seem to think this year is any worse than most with regard to pathfinders.

According to Paul Stoeck, assistant building superintendent, this happens regularly. Sometime in the next 30 days, he says, when the growing season really gets underway, the "please use the sidewalk" signs will be posted on the yard. He claims these signs are somewhat effective.

In the meantime, perhaps your letter can persuade some short-cutters that their cross-country excursions aren't welcomed by all their fellow citizens.

We need your help in getting a claim processed for major medical expenses through Blue Cross-Blue Shield (BCBS) Jan. 31. The claim was filed for my husband's chronic medical care for all of 1972 and the last three months of 1971 when we converted from his family policy with the state to my present coverage under federal group insurance with the Veterans Administration. We would appreciate it so much if this claim could be processed without further delay!
—Mrs. D.F.M., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Our experience with BCBS leads us to believe that their organization is nearly impenetrable and their processes immutable.

However, we were able to get a few explanatory facts and a check into your case.

There are several complicating factors at work in your case: 1) all federal claims have to be wired into Washington for processing — always a delay. 2) since your claim was for chronic care, it probably involved fairly complicated paperwork — more bills, more paperwork, more delay. 3) the conversion from one type of insurance to another could be a delaying factor.

But your claim, according to records, is in the works. It has been wired to Washington but nothing has yet been received back. A clerk at BCBS says it could be another month.

Can you please print the address for the Medic Alert people? They supply the small medallions you can wear that alert medical personnel to your own peculiar allergies or special health conditions.

Federal Housing Program Freeze Hit

By United Press International
The State Department of Economic Development Tuesday termed "devastating" the possible effect of the federal housing program moratorium unless it is lifted or modified in the near future.

"If no relief is granted during the 18-month moratorium on public housing announced by the administration, the freeze of funds for new units could have a devastating effect on Nebraska because it could mean a potential loss of about 1,800 rental units and 2,000 home ownership units for low and moderate income persons," the department said.

In terms of a dollar impact, the department added that the moratorium could result in a $77 million loss from the standpoint of construction expenditures. The department then broke down the potential loss according to the five federal government housing programs.

The breakdown included: Housing and Urban Development (HUD) Public Housing Programs — A potential loss of 750 units, 304 of them for the elderly, and $15.8 million in construction expenditures.

Federal Housing Administration (FHA) 236 Program — 580 rental units and $19.6 million in construction expenditures.

FHA 235 Program — 1,673 single family units and $39.7 million in construction expenditures.

Farmers Home Administration 515 Program — 51 rental units in rural areas and $586,500 in construction expenditures.

Farmers Home Administration 502 Program — 328 single family units in rural areas and $4.4 million in construction expenditures.

China Seeks Cures

By ALTON BLAKESLEE

PEKING, China (AP) — Modern China is a vast laboratory searching for new and better drugs against all of man's health afflictions.

This hunt is analyzing thousands of herbs that have long been a mainstay of Chinese medicine. And it is directed, too, toward finding new drugs from herbs yet untried.

One goal is herb medicines to treat cancers and heart diseases, now becoming the leading causes of death in the People's Republic of China, as they are in the United States and other Western countries.

"Our country is a big national storehouse, a treasure chest of medical herbs," says Dr. Chu Chao, official in charge of medical science and technology at the Ministry of Health in Peking. "Why not make use of it?" Some 5,000 herbs have been put to use and some are rather effective.

A general survey of herbs is reported under way around the country some of it centered in medical schools and hospitals to identify herbs that are judged really effective to isolate active ingredients that then might be produced synthetically, and to test new combinations of herbs.

Numerous modern drugs came from herbs or plants including Ephedrine to treat asthma. Reserpine for high blood pressure and quinine to combat malaria.

Herbs grown or found in southern China differ from those in the north. Dr. Chu said so local herbs are being collected, cultivated and used on patients in some areas.

Some of this involves testing on patients in local communes where there may not be rigorous medical judgment concerning effects other than the well-known power of suggestion that involves many medicines.

Until recently most herbs had been brewed into concoctions. Now we are trying other forms such as pills, tablets and powders. Some places turn out herb medicines in injectable form but we (the Health Ministry) do not advocate that. There may not be good measures for quality control, Dr. Chu said.

As yet there are no published results on the herb analysis the official said. Only one medical journal has resumed publication since the upheaval of the great Cultural Revolution. There had been 19 before.

The national effort is to find herbs for all diseases, says Dr. Ma Hai-teh, an American who has spent 40 years in China and witnessed and taken part in China's vigorous new programs to expand health care among the country's more than 700 million to 800 million people.

Dr. Ma born George Hatem said that at his own institution the Chest and Cardiovascular Hospital in Peking, we are trying to find new herb medicines for cardiovascular disease.

Some 10 to 15 different herbs are being tried clinically. They had already gone through animal tests to determine which ones might hold promise. Many hospitals are doing the same thing on various diseases but the results have not yet been published.

At the Peking Pharmaceutical Works where some 80 modern drugs are being mass-produced including antibiotics, vitamins, pain killers and hormones, researchers are reported to be analyzing some 40 to 50 varieties of herbs and various mixtures again with no firm results yet.

In angina pectoris the pain due to insufficient blood supply to the heart, the herbs so far are not effective alone, Dr. Ma said, so we use them along with nitroglycerine or other Western drugs.

Herb medicines are slow acting but prolonged so a combination usage with Western drugs seems one way in which herbs might be very helpful.

During World War II Dr. Ma continued I worked with herbs when I didn't have any medicines behind the Japanese lines. We set up plants to produce herb medicines. We had two or three antipyretics, (drugs to combat fever) others for diarrhea and dysentery. We used them as if they were the most modern medicine.

"Many older Chinese doctors are convinced of the effectiveness of herbs. We know a lot of things in them that are useful. They are more than a placebo (a sugar or dummy pill)."

WASHINGTON (AP) — There was an old woman who lived in a shoe. Which she sold for $75,000 through a suburban real estate agent who listed it as a "charming cottage."

Or so it seems to government employees and other middle-income residents of the Washington area.

Federal statistics show that of 23 metropolitan areas studied, the rate of housing price increases currently is highest here, 6.2 per cent on an annual basis. The rate nationally is 3.2 per cent although rates in some metropolitan areas, such as San Diego, Calif., Buffalo, N.Y. and New York City, range from 4.9 to 5.6 per cent.

In the Washington area even relatively well-paid white collar workers, such as government middle-level managers and consultants, are having trouble affording houses.

"Someone making $25,000 and above can find a house here said one local agent. But below that, it's difficult."

Suburban policies deliberately limiting growth, lack of sewers and the availability of low down-payment mortgages all play a part in surging housing costs.

One analyst predicts that a shortage of houses in the area could lead to under-the-table deals in home sales by summer.

Nationally, the price of houses increased by an average $4,200 in the past year, according to the National Association of Home Builders.

But in the Washington metropolitan area, the price for new houses is going up an average $1,000 a month, local real estate agents say.

It's an unbelievable situation, said Jim Krauser, an official of one of Washington's largest real estate firms. "There's been a $10,000 jump in the price of some houses in the past eight months. Right now people are paying over the asking price because they know there's someone right behind them who will out-bid them."

Statistics from realtors in Montgomery County, a wealthy Maryland suburb, show that in 1972 the price of single-family homes increased 17 per cent, more than four times the rate of all consumer prices.

Salesmen say that three-bedroom houses in "close-in" suburbia, within seven miles of Washington, sell for at least $50,000. But few are available.

In nearby Fairfax County in Virginia, the vacancy rate for houses was 1.8 per cent last year, according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

William Regardie who just finished a market analysis of 218 housing projects in the Washington area said there soon will be waiting lists of people who want to buy new homes and by this summer it's conceivable that people will try to slip something under the table to get one.

Agents say they don't see the situation improving for the consumer and concede they're doing little to dampen the steep rise in house prices.

"I'm doing my damndest to keep prices up, but don't quote me," said one real estate salesman.

One problem affecting the housing shortage is a sewer moratorium currently in effect in suburban Maryland and parts of Northern Virginia.

Officials have set a 1976 target date for completion of new sewage treatment plants, but privately they worry that Nixon administration cutbacks in funds for water clean-up will delay plans at least a year.

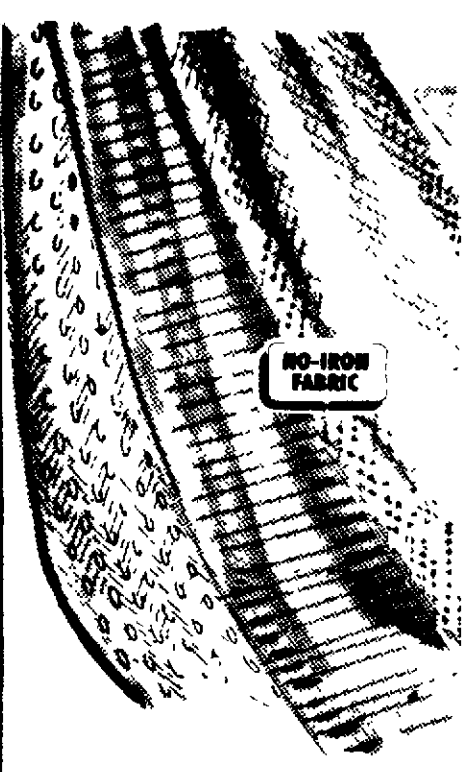

Another factor affecting the price rise is a "slow growth" policy adopted by some surrounding counties. The policy limits building and helps push up costs of existing houses.

Fairfax county developers and builders say that all building will come to a halt by 1974 if the restrictions aren't removed.

Still another factor affecting housing prices is the substantial use of private mortgage insurance companies.

Two Hastings Natives Expected To Be Freed With Last POWs

Hastings (UPI) — Two Hastings natives were to be among the remaining 148 American war prisoners released in Hanoi.

They were identified Monday as Air Force Capt. Frederick C. McMurray, captured in September, 1972, after his plane was shot down in North Vietnam, and Capt. Stephen Long, one of eight pilots the Pathet Lao agreed to set free Wednesday in Hanoi.

Capt. Long was listed by the Pentagon as a Hastings resident. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Long, resided here until 1947. It was reported. They are now residents of Springfield, Ore. Long's uncle, D. F. Stephenson, is still a Hastings resident.

The McMurray family moved to Idaho from Hastings in the late 1940s. His mother, Mrs. Roy McMurray, used to work as an announcer for radio station

KHAS in 1943 during World War II.

Contacted in Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, she said the family was "all extremely happy. There's an awful lot of shouting around here right now."

"For us, the war is over," she said. "Now it's time to turn our attention and our prayers to the other men still listed as missing in action."

Eppley Foundation Aids Hospital Drive

Omaha (UPI) — T. J. Dacey Jr., general chairman of the Midlands Community Hospital fund-raising drive, announced Tuesday the Eugene C. Eppley Foundation has awarded a $300,000 grant to the hospital's building program.

The grant was presented by Eppley Foundation President J. R. Reifschneider to Mrs. Phyllis Schmidt, administrator of Doctors Hospital, which will move to the new hospital.

In presenting the grant, Reifschneider, who is also board president of Doctors Hospital, pointed out that the trustees of the Eppley Foundation recognized the importance of moving the hospital from downtown Omaha, where there is a surplus of hospital beds, to Sarpy County, whose population is in serious need of health care services.

"The greater Omaha area," said Reifschneider, "is steadily growing into a top medical center, with two of the finest medical schools in the country, 13 hospitals, seven nursing schools, and a wealth of physicians, nurses, and paramedical personnel.

"But one of the serious voids in our medical program," he added, "is the lack of a hospital to serve the Sarpy County section of greater Omaha. Midlands Community Hospital will fill that void, and at the same time, the closing of the present Doctors Hospital upon completion of the new facility will relieve the overbedding problem in central Omaha."

Hearing Slated Friday On State Water Quality

A hearing on proposed new state water quality standards will be held Friday at North Platte, State Environmental Control Director James Higgins announced.

Higgins said the Nebraska Environmental Control Council is scheduled to conduct the hearing at the Ramada Inn beginning at 10 a.m.

The primary purpose of the changes being recommended, the director said, is to bring the state's standards into compliance with the terms of the new federal water quality act of 1972.

He also said that it is hoped the standards ultimately adopted will be the ones which his agency would be following in its pollution abatement program.

The federal act allows for federal control and enforcement, but it also allows for state administration in cases where the contemplated program meets with approval from the federal environmental protection agency.

Pending in the Nebraska Legislature is a bill which has been given tentative federal approval which would put the state in control of its own water quality control program.

The state legislation, like the federal act, would establish procedures for the issuance of permits to those discharging potential pollutants into waters of the state.

Radio Stolen From NPPD

York (AP) — Thieves stole a transmitter and receiver from a Nebraska Public Power District site near York, sheriff's officers reported Tuesday. Deputies said the equipment was valued at approximately $1,300.

Ted Kneebone, policy information director for the South Dakota State Planning Agency, has resigned to accept the position of library systems coordinator at Sangamon State University, Springfield, Ill. Kneebone served from 1960-66 as head librarian of Nebraska Wesleyan University in Lincoln.

Shorthorn Unit Elects Schlegel

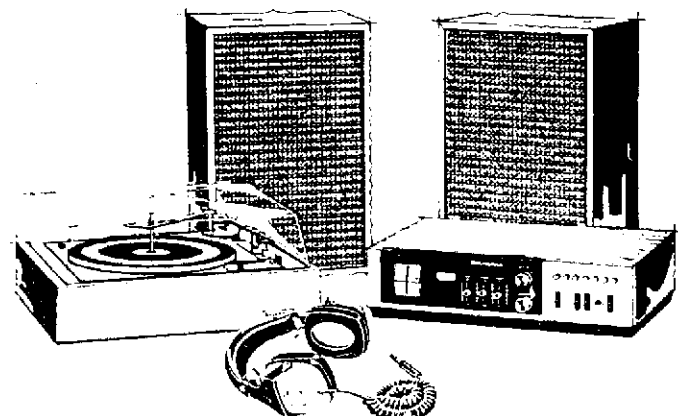

Omaha (UPI) — Darold Schlegel of Culbertson has been elected president of the Nebraska Shorthorn and Polled Shorthorn Association.

Harold Sjener of Spalding was named vice president and Bill Stunkel of Fremont continues as secretary-treasurer.

Schlegel replaces Gene Hexox of Gothenburg as president.

Ron Rucker of Seward was elected president of the Junior Shorthorn Association, and Mrs. Dale Rucker of Seward was named president of the Nebraska Shorthorn Ladies.

British Director Not Overawed By Classics

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — English director James Cellan Jones is something of a debunker.

He does not approach the classic literature he has brought to the television and movie screens with overawed reverence, which he believes is creatively inhibiting.

Nor does he think British television quite lives up to its exalted reputation. "It's okay," he said, "but it could be better. I don't know that it's great. There's a couple of good things on a week, which is all you can ask."

After an apprenticeship at BBC's Lime Grove Studio, the Welsh-born Jones became one of England's most sought after directors of serialized classical novels for television.

"What is a classic anyway?"

be asked on a brief visit here. "A lot of hushed voices, many of which are boring."

Jones, 37, recently completed his first motion picture, which is called "The Nelson Affair," in the United States and "A Bequest to the Nation," in England. He said, "There's too much exaggerated respect for the classics. Actors are sometimes not prepared to treat a script as a script. They treat it with kid gloves, which is dangerous."

"I was directing a film based on a Henry James novel and the cast was pussyfooting around. Then one of the actors, Barry Morse, said the thing to remember about Henry James is that he's an old bore. That helped tremendously."

Jones said he approaches the classics pragmatically. He directed seven episodes of "The Forsyte Saga," which became a hit on public television here three years ago. "It was high class soap opera," he said. "I described it as 'Peyton Place' with class, which annoyed some people."

The trouble with BBC, Jones believes, is that "the executives have an exaggerated respect for procedure. In an organization that is not state-run, but state-financed, you have the danger of the civil service mentality creeping in. But it is the finest television organization in the world, as much as I rail at it and shout at it."

He said one of the greatest assets of British television are the actors, who are ready to work in every medium. "We have a body of actors in England, possibly the most skilled actors in the world, who are prepared to do television and spend time with it if — if they can get good scripts."

"Actors in England are used to working within a company," he added. "An actor will be used to taking a back seat and won't be insecure. He will have a large part one time, a minor role another time. I think it's healthy. There isn't much pressure on actors. If he takes a small part people don't say he must be on the skids."

"It's getting harder to put on good stuff. BBC is worrying about the ratings. It has to. So I think, arrogantly, it's up to the directors like me to go against this tendency to make the ratings good, but not to get so rarified that you lose the public."

How to make a burger sizzle!

It's easy. Just pan fry your hamburger in 1 tablespoon of French's Worcestershire Sauce and 1 tablespoon of butter. That's a Sizzlerburger. So remember, for more delicious burgers —

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Wednesday

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Highlight ability to utilize material available. Be versatile. Reach beyond what appears to be a limitation. Open lines of communication. Sagittarius is involved. Give attention to health and work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Favorable lunar aspect coincides with romance. Creative endeavors, relations with children. Combine logic with impulse. Strive for balance. You are tempted to gamble. But wise course sees you obtaining facts, discarding rumors.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Communicate with family member. Property issue should be settled. Delaying for too long a time could result in loss. Gemini and Virgo persons appear to be in picture. Key is to build on solid base.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family reunion could be on agenda. Wandering relative may communicate or visit. Be diplomatic. Your curiosity now could offend. Sense of humor is your ally. Know it and act accordingly. Soft sell approach is necessary.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Spotlight is on what you can earn and what must be paid. Review budget. Prices individual may be involved. Situation as it actually exists. Be imaginative, but don't brood. You are due to make profitable discovery. Study time print.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Put ideas to work. Take chance on your own abilities. Display confidence by taking initiative. Capricorn is in picture. Accent is on personality, new start, fresh approach. You're going to earn money!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish rather than initiate project. Co-operate with group, special charity enterprise. Visit one confined to home, hospital. Adhere to principles. Golden rule. If you do, you emerge a winner.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY You are dynamic, attractive, arrogant at times and capable of rallying when odds are against you. Change of residence indicated this year. With September an out standing month. You draw to you persons born under Leo.

Mobile Home Court Action Delayed

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday deferred action for one week on a special permit application for a rural area mobile home court proposed by George Eager.

The City-County Planning Department has recommended approval while the Planning Commission recommended denial of the application, which proposes a 122-lot development with lake and nature area one-half mile east of No. 56th and four miles north of Interstate 80.

The application drew opposition from the Waverly School District, some area residents and Robert Jeambey, chairman of the Goals and Policies Committee.

Agency On Aging Support Must Wait

Lancaster County commissioners Tuesday indicated that any firm support including financial support of the City-County Agency on Aging would have to wait until budget time this summer.

Board Chairman Robert Colin, who contended that the project should be a county-wide project to insure better participation by rural residents, indicated that he thought a possible duplication of services by other agencies should be looked at.

In other business, the board was informed by Lancaster County Atty Paul Douglas that he and City Atty Richard Wood saw no problems with the city and county holding a joint public hearing on the Goals and Policies Committee report provided each group acted separately on the report at their individual meetings.

Douglas also told the board

Dairy Princess To Be Selected At Syracuse

The American Dairy Association of Nebraska will select a new dairy princess to represent the dairy industry in Nebraska at Syracuse on June 2.

The 1973 dairy princess will receive a $400. cash scholarship, wardrobe allowance, numerous gifts and will be a part-time paid employee of the Nebraska ADA. Entry closing date is May 15.

Entry forms and information on requirements are available from the American Dairy Association of Nebraska Box 594, Fairbury, Neb. 68352.

Rules require that a candidate must be a resident of the state for one year, and be of a dairy farm background. She must be between 16 and 25 and a high school graduate.

Candidates will be judged on the basis of an interview, beauty, personality, background, education and ability to speak and meet the public, according to J.S. Lewis, manager of the Nebraska ADA.

79-Year-Old Gen. Hershey Is Retired

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, who oversaw the drafting of 14.5 million Americans in three wars, retired Tuesday with military pomp at age 79—the oldest military man on active duty.

Since he stepped aside as director of Selective Service in February, 1970 he has been President Nixon's adviser on manpower mobilization.

Hershey, dressed in full dress blue-endgold of an Army four-star general, heard himself hailed as the man "who marshaled two generations of Americans in defense of freedom."

The retirement ceremony at the Pentagon was presided over by Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson. The military honors included ruffles and flourishes, an honor guard representing all the armed services and a battery of artillery firing a 17-gun salute.

353 Prosecuted

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — There were 353 prosecutions last year under a South African law prohibiting interracial sexual relations.

LOOK FOR RAGU

America's Tastiest SPAGHETTI SAUCE

tion from the Waverly School District, some area residents and Robert Jeambey, chairman of the Goals and Policies Committee.

Sems 'Strange'

Lincoln attorney Norman Krivosha, representing Eager, told the commissioners that he thought it seemed "strange" that the planning director and his staff would recommend approval if the proposal violated the goals and policies recommendations.

He said that the Goals and Policies Committee was not supposed to sit in place of the planning director and Planning Commission and charged Jeambey with "clothing himself" as chairman of the Goals and Policies Committee in a matter that should be disregarded.

A representative of the City-County Planning Department told the commissioners that that department did not feel that the proposal constituted urban sprawl in the area and did not feel that it would adversely affect any adjacent property.

Jeambey contended that the proposal did constitute urban sprawl in the eyes of the Goals and Policies Committee.

Child Per 4 Units

Krivosha contended that studies show that trailer or mobile homes average one child per four units or one-fourth child per unit as compared to 2.5

school age children per unit in regular homes in the City of Lincoln.

In answer to opposition by the Waverly School District in which the area would be located, Krivosha said that on the basis of the average figures, only about 25 children would be added to the district.

"If the Waverly School District will fall apart by adding 25 children, then the problem is of the school district, and not the mobile home units," he said.

One opponent of the proposal contended that wells for water would be a problem; while another, who said he was a developer in the area, contended that people building homes in the vicinity were opposed to such a use for the land.

Retarded Children Attend Special Sunday School Classes

By PATTY DEUTLER
Star Staff Writer

The spiritual growth of Lincoln's retarded children is as much a concern of the Capitol Association for Retarded Children (CARC) as is the mundane task of day-to-day learning. To provide for the religious instruction of these special-needs youngsters, a network of Sunday school classes has been set up at several churches in the community.

According to CARC Executive Director Dave Blume, such classes began in Lincoln over eight years ago through the requests of the parents of retarded children. At present five Lincoln churches are participating in this program, each on an independent basis.

Seminars Held

Blume went on to explain that CARC's religious nurture committee has sponsored seminars for pastors concerning the religious needs for "special" children and the services that ministries can provide.

In addition, CARC holds an annual special education Sunday school teachers' workshop during which a qualified instructor demonstrates religious materials developed for educable and trainable retarded children.

As Blume sees it, these special class sessions provide the youngsters with an opportunity to interact and to develop relationships while they learn some basic moral precepts.

At the same time the religious instruction enhances the child's family and school learning, believes Blume. While providing a different environment for the youngster, the class also serves to involve the child in family church life and offers him much-needed socialization.

More Needed

Blume now sees a need for gearing up the religious education approach to meet the needs at various levels as the children grow up to young adults. He cited the need for sex education, marriage counseling and social programs through the church for young married retarded couples.

To involve these special needs youngsters in the rest of the life of the church is one of the goals of the classes, remarked the Rev. Dave Powell of Trinity United Methodist Church. It is important that these children not be "set off on the side by themselves," he added.

At Trinity Methodist a husband and wife conduct two separate classes on Sunday mornings.

Mrs. Audrey TeSelle, who teaches the younger class, emphasizes to her children that God made them in a special way, giving them different gifts which can be used in different ways.

'Self-Acceptance'

Her approach to teaching includes a lot of craft work to show the youngsters what kind of ability they have. Creating a "self-worth" and "self-acceptance" within the children is important, she stressed.

While she is not sure the children respond to deep theological concepts, she uses Bible stories to relate concepts of love. A short period of worship, usually involving a recitation of a Bible verse is also included in each class. But Mrs. TeSelle admitted, "I don't talk at them a lot."

The Rev. Charles Rinnitz explained that at Christ Lutheran Church individualized instruction is given in these classes, with one volunteer teacher for each student.

Finding the teachers has been no problem, said the Rev. Mr. Rinnitz. His real concern is with the lack of curriculum materials for the teachers to use.

Two Confirmed

He explained that last spring two of the older students from the classes were confirmed into communicant membership of the church — a first time event at that church.

As far as the scope of the classes, the Rev. Mr. Rinnitz "in no way wants to limit them." Although he said that the classes would include as many students as have the need, he believes that the limited program is covering those in the parish. He stressed that classes are open to those outside the parish as well. Mrs. Elnore Shear, a member of CARC's religious nurture committee and a former teacher at Trinity Methodist's special classes, remarked that "religion means acceptance into a social world," so important to many of these children who are rejected in other areas. Retarded children need to have all the advantages of the normal world, believes Mrs. Shear, who added that "emotional needs know no boundaries."

'SELF-ACCEPTANCE'... stressed by Mrs. TeSelle.

NORMAN L. PETERSON IS AN UNUSUAL MAN...

He is running for the city council with no axe to grind.

THE VALUE LEADER FOR THE BEST IN BEEF... *P.S. *PERSONALLY SELECTED FOR YOU BY OUR OWN MEAT SPECIALISTS!

CONSUMER AFFAIRS

Meat selection is important to all of us as it often accounts for approximately one third of the shopping dollar, and has become the backbone of the family meal. It is important to buy wisely. Here are a few things to remember to get the best results from your meat purchases. An easy rule of thumb to use in selecting the best cut for your particular need is to use the shape of the bone in the meat as a clue to tenderness. Cuts with angular or flat bones—T-bone, pin bone, wedge bone, rib bone—all represent the more tender steaks and roasts. Cuts with round bones, shoulder blade bones, and lower rib bones indicate less tender cuts of meat. Any cut of meat will be at its tender best when cooked the least amount of time necessary using the proper cooking method.

Cooking methods:
The most tender cuts can be broiled or pan broiled in the oven broiler or a skillet over open barbecue coals for a short length of time; roasted in an open pan in the oven at a moderate to low temperature (300 to 325 degrees) for 15 to 20 minutes per pound for rare, 20 to 25 minutes per pound for medium, and 25 to 30 minutes per pound for well done, or fried in hot liquid oil.
Less tender cuts should be braised, browned in fat, then simmered just below boiling point in very little liquid in a covered pan in the oven or on top of the stove.
Least tender cuts should be cooked in liquid. Simmered slowly and gently in one or two cups of liquid in a covered pan until tender.

"Take advantage of our 'Personally Selected' meat special buys. For good economy, try a less tender, less expensive cut such as beef chuck, brisket or flank, using the 'braise' or 'cook in liquid' cooking methods. These cuts are just as nutritious as the more tender cuts, and can provide your family's meat at a more economical price.

Donuts from biscuits? Sure! Here's a quick and easy recipe using T.V. Biscuits—special this week!

Preheat cooking oil to 400 degrees.
Take biscuits from the can and form a hole in the center. Drop donuts in oil for one to two minutes, or until light brown.
Put sugar, and cinnamon mixture, or brown or powdered sugar in a paper bag. Drop donuts in paper bag right from oil and shake. Serve while warm for bakery fresh donuts.

Paperboys Are Robbed By Youth

Two paperboys who are twin brothers were robbed of a money bag containing about $85 as they were collecting Monday night, according to police reports.

Dan and David Hoage, 13, of 5042 Greenwood, told police that a youth with long blonde hair and about 15 to 16 years old grabbed the money bag at about 47th and Adams and ran with it.

Dean said three youths had been following them minutes before the incident as they were collecting near 45th and Judson. He said they fled through several yards to 47th and Adams where they encountered the thief, who they said was one of the three that had followed them.

David delivers The Lincoln Star. Dan delivers the Lincoln Evening Journal.

Council Urged To Take Over Union Station

Omaha (AP) — The Omaha City Council was urged Tuesday by the Omaha Junior Theater and the Omaha Model Railroad Club to take over the old Union Station from the Union Pacific Railroad.

Some of the club members came to the weekly session dressed as storybook characters to emphasize their point.

The council unanimously agreed to a resolution of intent which expressed the city's desire to acquire the property in downtown Omaha if there is an agreement on satisfactory terms with the railroad.

Broadcaster Ebel Named 'Man Of Year'

Nebraska broadcaster A. James Ebel of Lincoln was named "Man of the Year" in engineering by the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB).

The award was presented at NAB's 51st annual convention meeting at the Shoreham Hotel in Washington, D.C.

Ebel was cited for his intensive work in satellite transmission. He also was recently named president and general manager of KOLN-TV, KGIN-TV, Lincoln and Grand Island, and KMEG-TV, Sioux City, Iowa.

Ebel has worked in the satellite broadcasting area in several capacities. He headed a special task force of CBS-TV affiliates to study the communications-satellite situation. He also headed a similar three-network affiliate organization in 1970.

He was a U.S. delegate to the World Administrative Radio Conference on Space Telecommunications in Geneva, Switzerland in 1971.

Grocery Store Picket Urged As A Protest

To protest high meat prices, Mrs. Lucy Nickelson is calling for major picketing of Lincoln's grocery stores Saturday.

Mrs. Nickelson said that picketing activities will be in conjunction with National Boycott Week, which begins Sunday. During that week housewives have been asked to buy no meat.

Those interested in helping organize the picketing are invited to attend a meeting Friday at 7 p.m. at Mrs. Nickelson's home, 401 So. 44.

Wives Must Face Future

Wednesday, Mar. 28, 1973 The Lincoln Star 33

As Patricia McCormack, UPI writer tells you, her topic this morning is by no means a pleasant one. It is, however, a subject that is of vital importance to every wife because one day she may be a widow.

If there are any wives who may doubt the information given in Patricia McCormack's article, all they need to do in order to appreciate it, is ask a widow who knew nothing about her husband's financial status — his investments, his insurance and his debts.

Here is the article:

New York — The subject of this column isn't pleasant. It concerns an eventuality that might occur on your homefront sometime. Widowhood.

The tragedy that makes a woman a widow often gives little or no advance notice. In addition to the emotional loss and the shock, a woman who has lost her husband also can become a WIFSDom — a Widow in Financial Straits. That is why every wife owes it to herself, her husband and her children to take steps to avoid WIFSDom.

W. Scane Bowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of a national financial services organization (Pioneer Western Corp.), says a survivor's kit can help a woman avoid WIFSDom.

The "kit" is a basic set of do's and don'ts for the many women who someday may join the ranks of widowhood. The "kit" would include:

Your husband's will and making certain you know where it is. Not being able to lay your hands on it can cause delays and trouble. Make sure your husband has an up-to-date will.

—Own a duplicate key to your husband's safe deposit box, if he has one. Know its contents — and better still, possess photostats of them. Keep lists of all insurance policies, deeds, mutual fund shares, stocks and income tax returns.

—Take an active interest in your husband's business — if there are portions you don't understand, inquire about them. Keep informed and keep up on the latest developments.

—Know who your spouse's professional advisers are — lawyers, accountants, insurance agents.

—Get to know your husband's trusted business associates and the people he looks to for guidance.

—Read everything you sign. Even if your husband tells you you are signing an inconsequential paper or document. Read it. Naivete has caused many a woman to assign herself to WIFSDom.

—Know the person or bank your husband has chosen as executor and trustee to carry out his will. Discuss these choices with him. They should be people who know and understand you and your life style as well as his.

—Be aware of your husband's financial liabilities. Don't let yourself in for the traumatic experience of finding out he is heavily in debt, something you never suspected.

—Have a reasonable amount of ready cash quickly available to meet immediate needs. A joint savings and or checking account can help avoid embarrassing demands.

P.S. — Turnabout is fair. Every man who read this far ought to take similar steps to be sure he is protected against poor financial straits of widowhood — in the event he should become one.

Chit Chat with Roxi

Teenagers have problems as do all people and whether that teenager is a girl or a boy makes no difference in the matter of worrisome questions. Talk your troubles over with Roxi — Write to her in care of The Lincoln Star, Lincoln, Nebr.

Dear Roxi:

What do you do when the girl you're taking out doesn't take the initiative when it's time to leave for the movie?

Mark T.

Dear Mark:

You can suggest that you think it's about time you should be leaving if you expect to make the movie on time. It will get the girl you're taking off the spot and both of you in the right direction.

Dear Roxi:

Our prom is coming up in a couple of months and I want to start early on getting someone to ask me. What can I do to get across the message I want to go? Dateless

Dear Dateless:

You can drop hints around the person you want to ask you. Say something to the effect it surely would be nice to go to the prom with someone you really wanted to go with. He should get the message and if he knows you would accept when he asked you it should give him the courage to go through with it. Many times boys will not ask girls out because they think they will get turned down, so give him no reason to think that.

Dear Roxi:

I have been wearing glasses for five years and I want contacts. My parents say no, they consider it a waste of money. I don't. I really want them, but how do I convince my parents of that?

Jenny

Dear Jenny: Sometimes it is hard for parents to realize how important some things are to their children. If you could pay for at least part of the cost of the contacts your parents should at least consider them. If your parents once realize that you are serious enough about the contacts to put up your own money for them then maybe they'll change their minds.

ABBY: tell the lady

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: If you have ever had this problem in your column, I must have missed it. It is one that several of us share.

We have a dear friend who talks too much. She is bright, attractive, and has many fine qualities, but her endless, detailed monologues are boring and exhausting.

Her husband is intelligent and articulate, but he doesn't get a chance to open his mouth because his wife always has the floor. If someone else is talking, she interrupts and proceeds to dominate the conversation.

She has always been a talker, but lately it's gotten to the point where our husbands don't care to spend an evening listening to her.

If you or any of your readers know how to reach a person with this fault, please tell us. Thank you, and please don't use my name.

NAME WITHHELD

DEAR NAME: The only effective way to reach a nonstop talker is via the direct route. One of her best friends should tell her privately, gently, but emphatically that she really should not talk so much, and give others a chance. And since you're the friend who wrote the letter, perhaps you're the one to tell her. It would be an act of kindness.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because all the etiquette books dodge this question. Is it proper to tip the owner of a barbershop or beauty parlor? I understand if you do, some owners are insulted.

I go regularly to a barbershop, where I tip the employee. However, from time to time, the owner of the shop cuts my hair himself. I know him personally, and know that he makes a good living from the shop, so I never tip him.

My wife tells me that she runs up against the same situation in her beauty shop where the owners sometimes do the work.

What is the correct procedure—if there is one?

PUZZLED IN PHOENIX

DEAR PUZZLED: Offer. If the owner is insulted, he will let you know it, in which case don't "insult" him again.

DEAR ABBY: I went to my minister because I have been having marital problems with my husband. It had to do with lovemaking. (He wasn't doing any.) I'm 28, and he's 29.

The minister said he really didn't know all that much about the subject, but he suggested that I take some lessons in belly dancing so I could entertain my husband and maybe that would perk him up a little.

Do you know of any place in Asheville, N.C., that teaches belly dancing?

WILLING TO LEARN DEAR WILLING: Not offhand, but look up dance studios in your Yellow Pages, and inquire. (P.S. Ask the Minister where HE got the idea.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "C" IN FORT COLLINS, COLO.: Sometimes the easiest way "around" something is thru it. So quit looking for angles and DO it!

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

This papier-mache table was made in England in Victorian times. It is 31-inches high. The decorations are mother of pearl gilt.

By RALPH and TERRY KOVEL

Furniture made from cardboard is one of the newest ideas by designers. It must be noted that paper furniture has been made since the early 19th century. Ordinary papier-mache made from paper and glue was used by Henry Clay of England.

A sedan chair used by Queen Charlotte was made by Baker before 1800. He also made a full set of tables.

Most of this early furniture was made with papier-mache tops with wooden or iron legs. One maker tried to make a papier-mache piano case. It had no resonance and it was a failure.

Jennings and Bettridge of England are the most famous papier-mache furniture makers. They exhibited at the Crystal Palace in London. Their early work had bases or legs made from wood.

By the 1850s, their tables were made with hollow pedestals of papier-mache. The top was held to the pedestal by a rod. This was unsatisfactory because it was difficult to repair. Bedroom sets, bookcases, what-not shelves, and other furniture were made of the papier-mache, japanned and decorated with mother of pearl and gilding.

If you own a piece of papier-mache furniture, keep it in a cool room. It is happiest at a temperature ranging from 65 to 70 degrees. Once the furniture cracks, it is very difficult to repair. Dust, but use very little furniture polish.

Q—Could my Kentucky rifle really have been made in North Carolina as it says on the engraved barrel?

A—Yes. The Kentucky rifle was named in a song following the Battle of New Orleans. The name was for the type of rifle. It could have been made in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, Massachusetts, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana or Kentucky. Most Kentucky rifles were made in Pennsylvania.

Opening lead - king of diamonds.

This deal occurred in a pair game. At practically every table the contract was two spades, played by South, and the outcome was almost uniformly the same at each table.

West invariably led the king of diamonds. East playing the nine to show a doubleton. West continued with the ace and another diamond. East ruffing the third round of the suit.

East returned the queen of spades at this point, and as a result South wound up with the rest of the tricks. He drew two rounds of trumps, cashed the K-J of clubs, entered dummy with a trump, discarded both his hearts on the A-Q of clubs, and in that way made two spades with two overtricks.

But at one table the East-West pair defended the hand perfectly and South went down two at two spades!

Here, also, West led the king of diamonds but East played the deuce instead of the nine, thus in effect commanding a switch to another suit. West duly obliged by making the obvious shift of a heart through dummy's king.

As a result of this joint effort, the defenders were able to pick the declarer bone-dry. East cashed the A-Q of hearts before returning the diamond nine.

West cashed the A-J and played the fourth round of diamonds, ruffed by declarer in dummy with the nine and overruffed by East with the queen.

Now East put the last nail in the coffin by playing a heart, and there was no way for declarer to stop West from scoring a further trick for the defense in the form of the jack of trumps. So North-South went minus 200 as a result of the inspired defense, and East-West racked up a beautiful top score.

A Tribute To Noel Coward

By CLIVE BARNES
(c) New York Times Service

New York — With the death of Noel Coward, the twenties, the thirties, even the forties move a little further into the distance. Suave, debonair, Coward was essentially a symbol from a more leisurely, perhaps more elegant time.

Coward did so many things well that there might be a tendency to forget just how well he did them. First and foremost he was a playwright. He wrote plays all of his life a surprising number of them being unpublished and unpublished. Three of them could probably enter the permanent repertoire — "Hay Fever," "Private Lives" and "Design for Living." These plays are some of the best comedies in the English medium.

Then there were his songs. He was one of the very few English songwriters ever to be welcome in America before the Rock age. His lyrics were succinctly graceful, and his music, despite a tell-tale crack of sentimentality to it, often had a rare combination of charm and humor.

He wrote beautifully, sometimes with more irony than wit. There was a degree of sentimentality to his work, and more important, a great deal of genuine sentiment. Despite an overt cynicism there always seemed a shy man peering out from behind a mask. Although essentially cosmopolitan his work is quintessentially English. Bowler-hatted, slightly supercilious, with a voice querulously redolent of tart prunes, to the American public he was perhaps the true archetypal Englishman.

Despite the fact that he lived rather more away from England than in it, he was fiercely patriotic, almost to the point of jingoism. And, for earlier generations of the English, he seemed to have an infallible feel for British nationalism, with plays such as "This Happy Breed," and his wartime film epic "In Which We Serve." Coward appears to have been the only man of the theater of whom that Yankee Doodle Dandy George M. Cohan thoroughly approved. There were similarities

Coward's career from boy actor to pampered patriarch knew many turns. Early fame and easy fortune were soon his. But for many years he was despised by the intellectual community and had only his popular success and bank account (Swiss, it is thought) for solace. Then came "The Master" as he was sometimes called, and he was recognized for his mastery.

In his final years his health was bad. He made his last visit to New York a few weeks ago for a special gala performance of the off-broadway musical "Roderick Cook" adapted from Coward's work, "Oh Coward!" Half of the world of New York show business was there to pay its respects, and the other half sent its regrets.

Coward looked frail but gallant, tired but not world weary. That he looked so much older than his actual years gave the scene a special poignancy. But one hopes, as he might have said, it was not the result of careful living.

Sir Noel, with a specially modest arrogance that a few English have patented, only claimed for himself "a talent to amuse." He has amused. He has enchanted. He will continue to do so and will, I suspect, be remembered on earth when many more portentous souls, some more significantly regarded in their day, are getting their rewards (and royalties) only in heaven or the other place.

MISS MARTHA MARTINEZ

An announcement which will be of interest to town and former campus circles is made this morning by Mr. and Mrs. John Martinez of Torrington, Wyo., who reveal the betrothal and approaching marriage of their daughter, Martha, to Richard Weygint, son of Mrs. Frank Weygint of Lincoln, and the late Mr. Weygint.

The wedding will take place on Sunday, April 29.

Miss Martinez was graduated from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, and now is a member of the staff at the Panhandle Mental Health Center in Scottsbluff.

Mr. Weygint is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, where he is a member of Theta Xi fraternity, and he now is a member of the Scottsbluff Junior High School faculty.

We had big plans for this morning — We were going to tell you about some extremely interesting people who have more than a remote connection to Lincoln — One of them is a tremendous success in

MISS LISA WARREN

Sorority Row on the University of Nebraska campus will have more than casual interest this morning in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Warren of the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Lisa, to Greg Michael Lederer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lederer of South Sioux City.

The wedding will take place on Friday, May 25. Miss Warren is a senior at the University of Nebraska where she is a member of Alpha Chi Omega sorority, of which she is a past president, and where she is majoring in fashion merchandizing.

Mr. Lederer also is a senior at the University of Nebraska and is majoring in psychology.

the field of art — One is a most intelligent young business woman whose husband is a former Lincoln resident — a third is a young man — a graduate of the American University in Washington D.C., whose athletic prowess has involved him in the Olympics in both Mexico and Munich.

But alas — our story must wait until the day we have plenty of space — So, until then, we'll be about the business at hand.

That Fifty Fifty Club is traveling again — The members will be having "Spring in Monaco" when they dine and have an evening of bridge at The Knolls next Tuesday. All of the activity, we are told, begins at 6:45 o'clock, and the plans for the evening have been made by Dr. and Mrs. Charles Bucy, chairmen, and Dr. and Mrs. Hubert Capek, co-chairmen.

An interesting communique arrived this morning from the nursery set in Whitewater, Wis. The message told of a brand new member, a petite Miss Coburn, who arrived on Sunday, March 25.

The young debutant is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Coburn of Whitewater, and her mother is the former Ginny Hanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Odell Hanson of Lincoln.

There are three more ardent admirers in the baby's family — her brother, Thayer, who is 15 months old, and her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Deane Coburn of Whitewater.

And now we go to Fulton, Mo., and William Woods College for news of an attractive young lady whose name is Miss Mary Spitsnogle, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Spitsnogle.

Miss Spitsnogle recently was initiated into Alpha Chi Omega sorority, and doubtless will be active in many groups on the William Woods campus — She was graduated last June from Lincoln's East High School where she served on the student council, was a member of the Pep Club, the International Club, and the East Guard.

It won't be too long now until the news will be taking on a homecoming flavor — April will bring many of the winter resort dwellers en route back to Lincoln.

MISS NANCY KELLER

On the Nebraska Wesleyan campus this morning there will be interest in the announcement made by Mr. and Mrs. Russell Keller of Seward, of the engagement of their daughter, Nancy, to Harry Oelschlaeger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Oelschlaeger of Branson, Mo.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, Dec. 29. Miss Keller is a coed at Nebraska Wesleyan University where she is majoring in sociology, and where she is a member of Delta Zeta sorority. Her honoraries are Phi Kappa Phi, Pi Gamma Mu, Alpha Mu Gamma, Cardinal Key and Ionians.

Mr. Oelschlaeger is majoring in creative design and business management at Southwest Missouri State University at Springfield, and plans to attend the University of Nebraska next fall.

To do it right doesn't mean it will cost more. See the professionals.

Hairdressers Earn Honors

Several members of the Lincoln Hairdressers Association earned awards at a state convention which was held in Omaha last weekend.

The local group's entry in the Parade of Affiliates was selected to represent the Nebraska Hairdressers Association at the national convention which will be held in Washington, D.C., in July. Thom McCann and Mrs. Betty Hernandez were responsible for creating the first-place entry which depicted Nebraska's Water Resources.

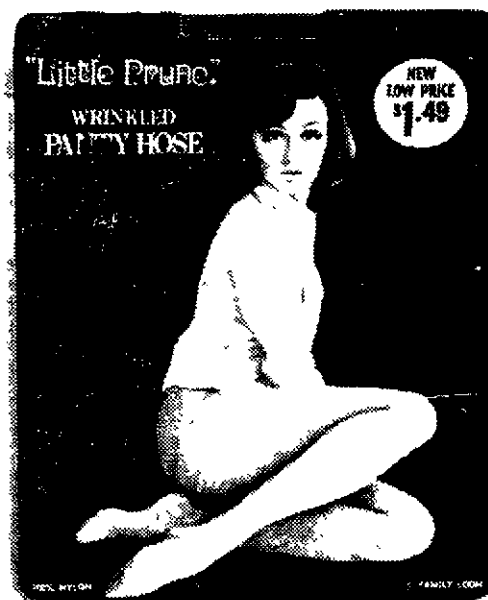

Individual award winners included Mrs. Dick Roubal who was named to second place in the commercial daytime comb out category. Miss Linda Peterman, second place for quick service, and Mrs. Donald Byrnes, second in total elegance and third in the commercial daytime comb out.

The Judges Are Working On The Best Book Awards

BY ERIC PACE
(c) New York Times Service

New York—Works about women's experiences, the Vietnam war, films and the environment are among the 109 books named as leading contenders for this year's 10 National Book Awards—the book world's equivalent of the movie Oscars.

The winners will be announced April 10 by the 36 judges appointed by a panel of the National Book Committee, which administers the awarding of the $1,000 annual prizes.

Meeting over lunchboxes at the committee's bustling Park Avenue chambers, the judges chose the 109 contenders from 10 categories of books that were published in the United States last year, written or translated by American citizens.

As listed and identified by a committee spokesman today the contenders—in the biography category—include seven books dealing with women's lives and experiences: Margaret Mead's autobiographic "Blackberry Winter: My Earlier Years," "Combat in the Erogenous Zone" by Ingrid Bengis, "Herself" by Hortense Calisher, "Mary Wollstonecraft" by Eleanor Flexner, "Lesser Lives" by Diane Johnson, "Gemini" by Nikki Giovanni, and "Eleanor The Years Alone" by Joseph P. Lash.

Of the 14 contenders designated in the arts and letters category, three, a relatively high number, deal with films. They are "Jean Renoir" by Leo Braudy, "The Fred Astaire & Ginger Rogers Book" by Arlene Croce and "On Film" by Vernon Young.

There are also three works of art criticism, "Realism" by Linda Nochlin, "The Re-Definition Of Art" by Harold Rosenberg and "Other Criteria: Confrontations With Twentieth-Century Art" by Leo Steinberg.

In the contemporary-affairs category, the books that deal with Vietnam and the American involvement are "Fire in the Lake" by Frances Fitzgerald, "The Best and the Brightest" by David Halberstam and "V Cover-up" by Seymour Hersh.

Another contender in that category is "Attica: The Official Report of the New York State Special Commission On Attica" which differs from the other contenders in that it was written as a government study.

In the sciences category, the books dealing with environmental questions include "The Serengeti Lion" by George B. Schaller and the popular "The Tree Where Man Was Born" by Peter Matthiessen and Eliot Porter.

Like last year, the contenders include books by former winners, notably Lash, whose "Eleanor and Franklin" won the prize for biography last year.

In addition to Lash's "Eleanor" Other best sellers among this year's contenders include the books by Miss Fitzgerald and Halberstam.

The awards will be presented April 12 at Alice Tully hall in Lincoln Center.

Sciences: "Aquaculture" by John E. Bardach, John H. Ryther and William O. McLarney, "Exploring New Ethics for Survival," by Garrett Hardin and "The Tree Where Man Was Born" by Peter Matthiessen and Eliot Porter. Poetry: "Collected Poem 1951-1971" by A. R. Ammons; "Epistle To A Godson and Other Poems" by W. H. Auden, "Delusions, Etc." by John Berryman and "The Human Season: Selected poems 1926-1972" by Archibald MacLeish.

History: "Presidential Character" by James D. Barber, "Mussolini and Fascism" by John P. Diggins, "Sugar and Slaves" by Richard Dunn and "Mao's Way" by Edward E. Rice.

Children's books: "The House Of Wings" by Betsy Byars, "Trolls" by Ingrid D. Aulare and Edgar Parin, and "Long Journey Home: Stories From Black History" by Julius Lester.

Translation: "Mayakovsky and His Circle" by Viktor Shklovsky, translated by Lily Feiler, "Spring Snow" by Yukio Mishima, translated by Michael Gallagher and "A Happy Death" by Albert Camus, translated by Richard Howard.

Fiction: "Chimera" by John Barth, "The Late Great Creature" by Brock Brower, "Transparent Things" by Vladimir Naabkov.

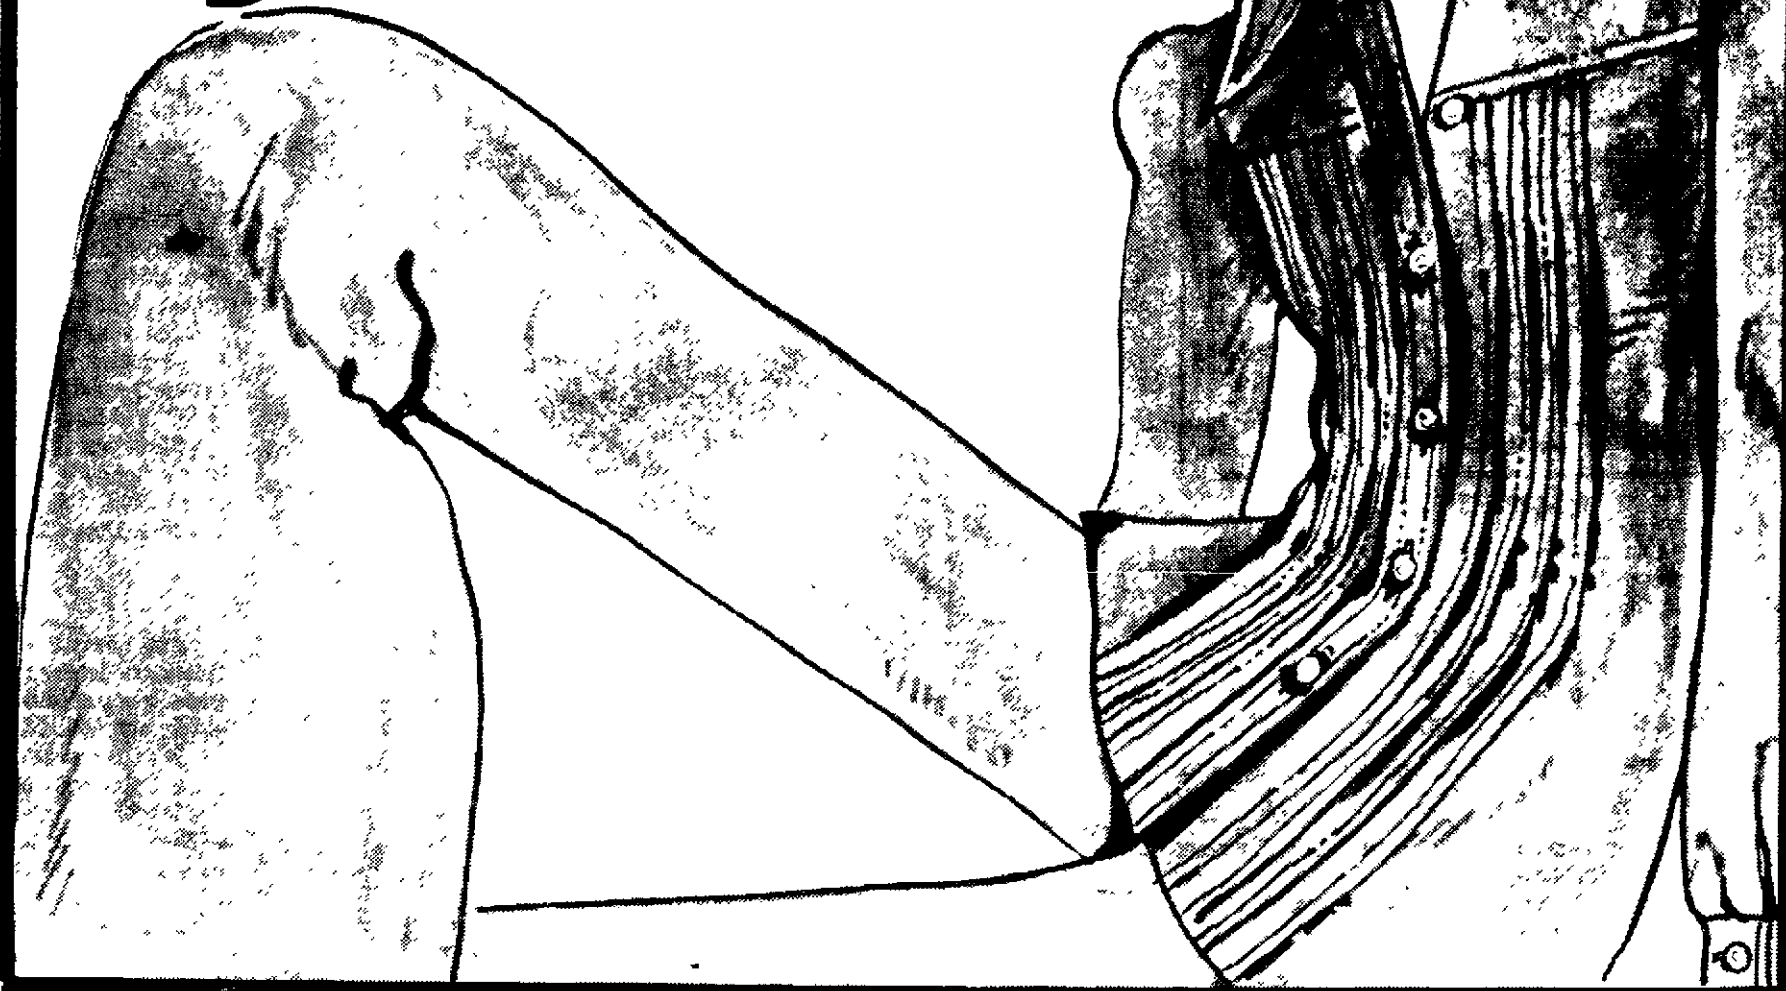

Philosophy and Religion: "A Religious History Of The American People" by Sydney E. Ahlstrom, "The Will To Be Human" by Silvano Arieti, "Mysticism And Morality: Oriental Thought And Moral Philosophy" by Arthur C. Danto.

For more information concerning the classes contact the YWCA - 432-2802.

Literary Group

The current best-selling novel by Robert Crichton, "The Camerons," will be discussed at the Wednesday afternoon, March 28 meeting of the Current Literature Group of the American Association of University Women.

Mrs. C. E. Rosenquist will lead the discussion following the 12 30 o'clock luncheon to be held at the First Christian Church, 430 So. 16th St.

Town And Country

In just four more days, the month of March will be a thing of the past, and April will once again make its annual appearance. Hopefully, however, since we seem to have received most of the proverbial "April showers" a month early, we'll see quite a few days of sunshine during the next several weeks.

Meanwhile, Town and Country residents will undoubtedly concern themselves with the usual activities — entertaining, traveling, attending meetings, working, and, if there is a spare moment left, relaxing.

Waverly

Mr. and Mrs. A. Clifford Anderson recently welcomed a new addition into their family, and the young lady's name is Miss Andrea Christine Clark. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anderson's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Clark, who reside in Colorado Springs, Colo., where Mr. Clark is stationed with the United States Air Force.

The young lady was born on Sunday, Feb. 25, and her paternal grandmother is Mrs. Christine Wind of Gothenburg. Mrs. Clark is the former Miss Sheri Anderson.

Bennet

A busy afternoon was on the agenda on Wednesday, March 21, for the members of the Golden Age Club. Meeting at the Legion Hall between the hours of 2 o'clock and 4 o'clock, they busied themselves by playing cards and dominoes, and by visiting. A lunch was also served.

We might also mention the fact that the officers for the club include Mrs. Clarence Ritter, president; Lee Wiles, vice-president; and Mrs. Leota Cheney, who is secretary-treasurer.

Enjoying a brief trip to Hastings last weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Burt. Mr. and Mrs. Burt left Bennet Sunday morning, and they spent the afternoon visiting at the home of Mr. Burt's sister, Miss Fairy Burt.

The members of the Bennet Community Church Ladies' Circle will hold their monthly meeting this week. They will gather at the church at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Malcolm

This morning we'd like to wish Mr. and Mrs. Roger Sieck a happy wedding anniversary, one day early. Mr. and Mrs. Sieck will observe their 5th anniversary tomorrow at a small family celebration.

Mrs. Sieck is the former Miss Kay Pickel.

Planning Session Held At Peru

PEO chapter presidents and chapter representatives for Reciprocity Group X met on the Peru State College campus on Saturday, March 24. Preliminary plans were made for the organization's state convention which will be held on the Peru campus from May 27 to 29, 1974.

Prior to the business meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Wilson, the convention general chairman, the ladies toured the campus and were entertained at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Lucy Majors.

Organizations Have Busy Schedules

Just a few more months remain in the regular-season club year for the members of the many women's and extension clubs in southeast Nebraska. But, at the present time, the various organizations activities are in full swing, and one such group which met recently, is the Davey Woman's Club.

Hostess for the Tuesday afternoon March 20 meeting was

Mrs. Russell Blomstrom, who entertained club members at her home. The meeting was of the luncheon variety, and, quite appropriately, the lesson was entitled "Casseroles." Program leaders were Mrs. David McGill and Miss Thelma Allely, and other members enjoyed sampling two of their casseroles as part of the luncheon menu.

Serving rolls and dessert were Mrs. Titus Johnson and Mrs. Blomstrom.

The ladies in attendance also welcomed a new member — Mrs. Gertie Anderson — into the club.

The next meeting will take place on Tuesday, April 17, and the hostess will be Mrs. Hilbert Anderson.

The members of the Waverly Matronettes Extension club gathered at the home of Mrs. Bill McGill on Wednesday afternoon, March 19, for their monthly meeting.

The program — which included a film, and which was entitled "Food Buying" — was presented by Mrs. Barbara Hodgins.

Morrison, Tiemann Back Exon On DAS

Omaha (AP) — Three Nebraska chief executives — past and present — are getting together to battle a bill in the Legislature.

Former Gov. Frank Morrison is joining former Gov. Norbert Tiemann and Gov. J. J. Exon in denouncing LB452.

The measure, sponsored by the Budget Committee, would replace the present Department of Administrative Services (DAS) with a department of what is termed governmental services.

Morrison said LB452 would in effect destroy the executive power of the governor and substitute government by committee. "Chaos would be substituted for centralized responsibility," he said.

Morrison, who was governor when DAS was formed, said he would agree entirely with his successors that DAS is "the heart of good state government and its destruction by the Legislature would be an ill-advised setback to responsible state government."

Earlier, Exon accused some legislators of making a concerted effort to curb some gubernatorial powers by passing LB452.

Exon has promised to veto the bill. DAS is the chief administrative agency of state government and oversees the operation and spending policies of all other state departments.

Solons To Give More Study To Employment Laws

By United Press International The Legislature Tuesday afternoon opted for some time to sit back and study a bill which some senators claimed would make a virtual mess of Nebraska's equal employment laws by virtue of floor amendments attached to the measure.

"We have created chaos," said Sen. Frank Lewis of Bellevue after a series of amendments suggested by Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff were attached to LB265.

As a result, the lawmakers decided not to read the bill, sponsored by Sen. Steven Fowler of Lincoln, on its way through the legislative process. The vote was 22-11 with 25 needed.

The bill was designed to put Nebraska's anti-discrimination in employment laws into compliance with federal ones so that the state would retain control over their enforcement, according to Fowler.

The first change suggested by Carpenter was to lower the jurisdiction limit from 25 employees to 15, above which the anti-discrimination laws would go into play.

Carpenter attempted to have that changed to 50, but it was rejected.

He then successfully had the penalty provisions of the bill amended downward from $1,000 fines to $100 and from up to a year in jail to 30 days.

The Carpenter amended the complaint filing time from a proposed 180 days to 30 days and that drew opposition.

Sen. John J. Cavanaugh of Omaha charged that the lawmakers, by approving the amendment, "have just crucified Nebraska's employers."

"Now, they are not going to know whether they're going to be in state court or federal court or possibly even both," he said. Cavanaugh said the real question the lawmakers had to decide in acting on the bill was whether they wanted state or federal jurisdiction.

By allowing Nebraskans only 30 days to seek state remedies while allowing them 180 to file in federal hands, he said the complaints would most generally be handled by federal authorities.

Some senators then suggested that the bill should probably be killed. But Lewis said it shouldn't and possibly the lawmakers would have a clearer view of the situation later and would reconsider their actions before the measure goes any further. The refusal to advance the bill was then allowed to stand.

Handicapped Aid Bill Is Advanced

The deeply-divided Education Committee managed Tuesday to advance a bill (LB403) providing that the state pay school districts 90% of the excess cost of training educationally-handicapped children.

Estimates were that LB403 would cost $2.4 million per year. Another $500,000 would be needed the first year to survey the needs of the handicapped children.

However, attempts to move a series of other bills stuck in committee ran afoul in a series of inconclusive votes. A total of 15 bills, including state aid to schools, have yet to be either advanced or killed by the committee.

Inter-city jealousies doomed any possible action on LB109, which earmarks $7.6 million in federal revenue sharing funds for a life sciences building at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, a new men's reformatory and book additions to Love Library.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha warned, "I'm not going to let Lincoln get all the loot."

Measure Designed To Protect Rights Of Juveniles Advances

The Legislature Tuesday gave first-round floor approval to a bill designed to protect the rights of juveniles.

The bill, LB60, would provide that a person under 14 years old cannot be fingerprinted by police unless a judge approves the action and would limit the availability of fingerprints of persons under 18.

The prints could not be sent to other law enforcement agencies

"You (Lincoln) get the fieldhouse and the office building. We need something for UNO."

Similar feelings stalled action on another education bill, LB533 which reduces the number of technical community college districts from eight to five.

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly favored the bill because he said some districts, particularly in western Nebraska, do not have sufficient valuation to raise 75% of the operating costs with their one mill levy. Fewer districts would also lower administration costs, Warner said.

Callaway Sen. James Waldron offered an amendment to reinstate the original eight districts, because the western Nebraska district would be too large to administer.

And Omaha Sen. George Syas offered an amendment to exclude Omaha from the eastern district, thus leaving control of Omaha's technical colleges under the Omaha School Board. "Our ballot is already too long without putting another board on it," Syas said.

Warner questioned the logic of leaving Lincoln in the southeast district while excluding Omaha from the eastern district.

"They're going to be picking this bill apart enough (in the Legislature) as it is," Warner said.

Sen. James Dickinson of Millard said any reduction in the districts would betray the trust of people who have gone about organizing the local districts under the 1971 Technical Community College Act.

Both amendments failed on successive 4-4 votes, and a motion to advance the original five district version fell one vote short of advancing on a 4-3 vote.

LB314 providing that non-resident high school tuition rates shall not exceed 1 1/2 times the average per pupil cost also failed to be advanced, although it was amended from the original 12 times the average cost on tuition.

unless the person under 18 had been convicted of a felony or was a runaway, according to the bill.

"This is a major step forward in protecting the rights of juveniles," said Sen. Roland Luedtke of Lincoln, chairman of the Judiciary Committee which sponsored the bill.

Luedtke said law enforcement agencies generally support the bill.

Unicam Kills One Safety Bill

Wednesday, Mar. 28, 1973 The Lincoln Star 39

By The Associated Press
The Legislature Tuesday killed one of a series of bills wanted by Gov. J. J. Exon as part of Exon's highway safety program.

The bill, LB269, died during first stage floor consideration as senator gave 15-12 approval to Sidney Sen. Robert Clark's kill motion.

The bill would have suspended for 30 days the driver's license of any motorist caught speeding more than 15 miles per hour faster than a speed limit of 50 miles per hour or more.

The measure was part of a package of several bills backed by Exon as part of his program to improve driving in the state. Supporters contended it would help take bad drivers off the road.

There was very little discussion of the measure Tuesday as it came up for general file consideration.

However, Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan who carried the bill for Exon, ran into some hostile questioning as he explained the measure. "Don't they drive?" asked York Sen. Walter Epke of Maresh after Maresh said Exon's highway safety council backed the bill.

State, Federal Officials To Air Nixon's Budget

Nine federal regional administrators from Kansas City will meet Wednesday with Gov. J. James Exon, state department heads and the Legislature to discuss the impact of President Richard Nixon's proposed budget.

Prime topics to be discussed will probably include cuts in federal funds for various programs, impoundment of funds appropriated by Congress for the states and uses for revenue sharing.

Those scheduled to be present are the administrators for the Department of Housing and Urban Development, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the Department of Labor, the Department of Transportation, the Office of Economic Opportunity, the Department of the Interior, the Environmental Protection Agency and the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration.

Common Cause To Study Radial

Local members of Common Cause have decided to study the environmental effects of the proposed Northeast Radial in Lincoln.

Environmental issues topped the list of concerns expressed on questionnaires completed by members in Nebraska's First Congressional District.

The local Common Cause steering committee also decided to seek permanent support for Lincoln's recycling center and to work for removal of the Womung Clause from the state's environmental protection act.

Wyoming Clause Repeal Advanced By Legislators

By United Press International

The Legislature gave first-round approval Tuesday to a bill which would cleanse Nebraska's pollution abatement laws of the so-called restrictive "Wyoming Clause."

The vote of the lawmakers to send Billwood Sen. Loran Schmit's repealer bill, LB254, over its first floor hurdle was 31-3.

The Wyoming Clause, which was written into the Senate Environmental Control Act of 1971, prohibited the State Environmental Control Council from adopting standards more stringent than those of the federal government.

Schmit, who authored the 1971 act, said the clause was included in the measure because of fears that the agency would clamp down too hard on Nebraskans.

"Considerable Restraint" Since then, however, he said the "department has shown considerable restraint" in its pollution control program.

"They have not harassed business or agriculture," the lawmaker said.

But Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said that he had fears the agency is going too far in the other direction and allowing too many exemptions to pollution standards for businesses.

He then offered an amendment which would prohibit the state from granting any exemption to pollution control standards which would be less restrictive than federal standards.

"If we don't adopt this amendment, I don't see how we're going to do any good," said Carpenter, and his amendment was attached on a 24-4 tally.

Need Questioned

Schmit said he didn't think the amendment was needed because only the federal government could authorize exemptions. But he also said that for the present he would not oppose it.

Sen. Leslie Stull of Alliance, one of the three who voted against advancement, said he had misgivings about repealing the Wyoming Clause because doing so might have an adverse impact on Nebraska's economy.

"We're going to, perhaps, discourage industry from coming into this state," he said.

But Schmit replied that he felt industry would not be discouraged because repealing the Wyoming clause would give them an idea of what actual standards will be.

Senators OK Rule Change For '73 Bills

By United Press International

Nebraska lawmakers approved a rules change Tuesday assuring that they will be able to knuckle down to work from the opening gavel of the 1974 legislative session.

They voted 31-0 to approve a procedure under which bills advanced by committees but not disposed of at the time of sine die adjournment this year will retain their position on the legislative board.

Committees will be able to hold onto measures they want for purposes of interim studies. It was originally suggested that all bills on general file — the point of first debate — when sine die adjournment occurs be returned to committees, but this ran into strong opposition.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said that would amount to "sheer nonsense." He recalled that at the start of this session, there was little to do the first couple of weeks because there were no bills up for legislative action.

Sen. George Syas of Omaha argued that would just be "shifting another load on the committees" and would result in them doing "duplicate work." Such procedure, he added, might also necessitate another public hearing for each measure referred back to committee.

Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan was rebuffed, 5-19, on another proposed change under which bills still in committee on the 50th day of a 60-day session would automatically have been killed.

The Legislature meets 90 days during odd-numbered years and 60 days in even-numbered years.

State Legislators Agree To Skip Friday Session

By United Press International

Because many committee chairmen will be in Washington for a White House briefing on federal revenue sharing, the legislators agreed Tuesday to skip a Friday session.

The action came after 22 senators indicated they would not be present on that day.

Earlier the lawmakers agreed to postpone for several days debate on Sen. Ramey Whitney's LB396, which, as introduced, deals with the types of securities in which funds may be invested by the State Investment Council.

Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff said he would like to use the measure as a vehicle for doing something about the "broad problem" of student loans, and Whitney said Carpenter had a good idea.

Whitney said he would like to have a constitutional amendment empowering the Legislature to borrow money for student loans until that could be implemented, he said, the Legislature could make $2 to $3 million available for that purpose. But he said he would like to see the loans restricted to needy students.

The Legislature went along with Carpenter's suggestion that bills providing for student loans be bracketed so that the problem would not be debated piecemeal but as one package.

During the discussion Whitney did note that the budget bill provides for an additional $550,000 for student financial aid and that the state also has been providing about $1 million in free tuition for students.

Prasch Not Disappointed By Supreme Court Ruling

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Lincoln School Supt. John Prasch said Tuesday that he is "personally not too unhappy" about the U.S. Supreme Court decision which held that local property tax support of schools is not unconstitutional.

At a regular school board meeting, Prasch said he believes court enforcement of reform in school finance "in the long term is not as satisfactory" as a situation which leaves such reform to the states.

The court said any inequities in school finance should be remedied in the state legislatures.

"Where It Belongs" The decision "throws it back to where it should belong," said Prasch.

He predicted the decision would take the pressure off of school finance reform movements "only temporarily."

"The problems all still exist," said Prasch.

He also said he would oppose some of the legislative proposals to set spending ceilings on school districts, although he's not opposed to such "bids" themselves.

May Not Deter One of the dangers created by the court decision, he said, is that it may not deter legislative efforts to set ceilings which were envisioned as part of a package including more state aid to education, but the increased state aid may not be forthcoming soon either.

In other matters, the school board accepted in principle a report from a joint school board-Lincoln Education Association committee which has been studying so-called extra standard pay.

The report of the committee urges setting formulas for paying teachers for duties not considered part of the regular teaching load.

The school board will study the report in detail later, but it accepted it Tuesday so that it might be transmitted negotiators for consideration in salary talks.

Prasch praised the report as an "excellent piece of work."

The board also declared a school site at 80th and Trendwood surplus property and authorized advertising for bids on it.

And, again at Prasch's request, the board authorized the administration to take steps to dispose of cottages now used as annexes to Belmont and Meadowlane Schools, assuming the buildings won't be needed next year.

Prasch said he would visit with Meadowlane parents before taking any action there. The Belmont annexes will not be needed once an addition is completed at Goodrich Junior High.

Last Man Captured Is Greeted

The last U.S. pilot shot down before the Vietnam cease-fire was Navy Lt. Comdr. Phillip A. Kientzler, left, of Poway, Calif. He is being greeted at Clark Air Base in the Philippines after his release Tuesday in Hanoi. Welcoming him is Adm. Noel Gayler, commander of U.S. forces in the Pacific. Kientzler was downed the day after the cease-fire agreement was signed Jan. 27.

Problems Are Seen In New Tech Board

The governing board of the Lincoln Technical College and the Lincoln School District was told Tuesday that it will face some intricate policy questions if the Legislature creates a separate tech college board effective July 1.

Supt. John Prasch, chief administrator for both systems, said at a regular tech college board meeting that a list is being prepared which poses all the questions which would need answers.

He told the board, which acts as the governing body for both the regular school and the college programs that he would bring a list of items to a future informal work session.

Prasch noted that a legislative proposal would separate the tech college operation from the current board and create a totally separate operation.

The tech college is housed in the Public Schools Administration Building and a number of other school district sites ties into the school district budget to insure that it has enough money to maintain an even cash flow and provides other services.

Although a number of those items have been built into the tech college budget, Prasch noted that a July 1 separation date might leave the tech college in a fiscal bind temporarily and could even leave it without a governing board until a new one is elected.

Prasch said the "biggest worry" is the possible July 1 start for the tech college budget on a different basis, while the college is now on the school district fiscal year which begins Sept. 1.

In other matters the board was told that the federally funded Manpower development and training program is in a state of uncertainty awaiting congressional action in Washington.

Director Darrell Grell said funds have been cut back and the number of students enrolled has dropped from 190 to 90 in about two months.

Man Is Charged With Striking Stepdaughter

Ron Amen, 36, of 2347 F. was arraigned in Lancaster County Court Tuesday in connection with an incident in which his 11-year-old stepdaughter was allegedly struck on the head with a billy club.

Amen was charged with a felony count of assault with intent to do great bodily harm. A preliminary hearing was set for May 2 and bond was set at $1,500.

According to police reports, Sunday night Amen allegedly came to the home of his former wife, June Amen, at 2429 So 13th, woke Suzette and asked her where her mother was.

Amen then allegedly struck Suzette on the head with a billy club according to police reports. June Amen returned home after an absence of several minutes and found the girl bleeding in the bathroom, police said. Suzette received seven stitches at Lincoln General Hospital and was released.

Police said telephone wires to the June Amen home were found cut. The Amen couple was divorced in November 1972 according to police reports.

Maine House Notes Service Of Sen. Smith

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Former Sen. Margaret Chase Smith's place was in the Congress — for 33 years until her defeat for re-election last fall.

The Maine House noted that the Skowhegan Republican is the only woman to have served in both houses of Congress, the only woman to have been elected to four full Senate terms, and the first woman placed in nomination for president at a convention of a major party.

And that, in the words of a House resolution honoring her, constituted an "unparalleled record of service."

Flight Faster Than Sound Is Restricted

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Aviation Administration, citing the annoyance and damage which can result from sonic booms, announced Tuesday a ban on virtually all supersonic flight by civilian aircraft over the United States and its territorial waters.

The only exception would be flights "at the lower end of the supersonic speed range" which have been proven to produce shock waves too weak to reach the ground.

The new rule is scheduled to take effect April 27.

U.S. Trade Deficit Worse In February

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit worsened in February after improving in January, but a Treasury Department official said there isn't any cause for alarm.

The deficit for February was $476 million compared with a January deficit of $303 million. The United States had only its second yearly trade deficit in recent history in 1972 and seems headed for another in 1973. The deficit for all of 1972 was $6.4 billion.

But Paul Volcker, undersecretary for monetary affairs said, that there has been some improvement in the trade picture in the past four months compared with the previous four months. The value of exports rose 14 per cent in the period while imports increased 12 per cent.

Volcker said monthly figures do not accurately portray the trade situation because they "move erratically from month to month."

"The trend of events over the past year shows there has been a little improvement," Volcker said at a news conference. "It comes at a time when the economy is advancing very rapidly, at a record rate of speed."

He said the trade balance usually is adversely affected during a period of domestic economic expansion. He added that the fact that the trade deficit is leveling off during the expansion period is a "hopeful sign."

During February, the United States had imports totalling some $5.5 billion compared with exports of some $5 billion.

That compared with January imports of $5.2 billion and exports of $4.9 billion.

Lincoln Fire Losses Totaled $653,636 During 1972

Property loss due to fires in Lincoln during 1972 totaled $653,636.48, according to figures officially submitted for inclusion in the Lincoln Fire Department's annual report.

The loss figure is up from the $632,631.51 loss figure reported in 1971.

Four persons died as a result of fires in 1972, compared with five who died in 1971. In 1972, 14 civilians and five firemen were injured. In 1971, 16 civilians and two firemen were injured.

The most common cause of fires last year was faulty or mis-used electrical wiring and equipment, with that cause attributed to 179 blazes.

Placing second as a cause for 71 fires was the overheating of grease and food during cooking. Children were responsible for causing 50 fires, according to the report. Fifty-three fires were reportedly caused by heating equipment.

The total number of alarms turned in during 1972 was 2,920. Of this amount, 159 were false alarms, 100 were "smoke scares," 48 were "honest mistakes," and 41 were accidental. There were also 20 bomb threats turned in, down from the 28 reported in 1971.

Firemen answered 679 calls for resuscitator equipment, 12 calls for first aid, 48 calls for help at accidents and 275 calls for other assistance.

Most of the fires reported in the city last year occurred in homes and at apartment buildings, according to the figures.

There were 385 fires reported in this category, compared with 374 reported in 1971.

In other categories, 46 fires were reported at businesses, 24 at nonresidential buildings (offices, churches, hospitals, theaters, schools and other institutions), 16 at public utilities and 5 at manufacturing plants.

There were also 277 grass or brush fires and 307 vehicle fires reported.

Charter Revision Unit For Pay Hike

The Charter Revision Committee is urging the Lincoln electorate to endorse a proposed charter amendment raising City Council salaries to $4,000 annually.

Committee Chairman Robert Sittig noted Tuesday that the group has recommended a salary increase on several occasions.

Reasons cited by Sittig for endorsing the amendment, which will be on next Tuesday's primary ballot, include:

salary tends to preclude candidacies from occupations other than the self-employed.

—high turnover and resulting lack of continuity on recent councils due to voluntary retirements.

time needed to serve on the council runs 15 hours weekly.

—the proposed $4,000 figure would put Lincoln council salaries in line with the average pay level for similar sized cities.

—there has been no salary increase since 1962.

TODAY YOUR FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR MAY KILL YOU.

The guy next door is probably a nice guy. Wife. Kids. House. Job. Car. And, for all you know, a drinking problem.

No matter how nice he is, if he drives when he's drunk, he's a potential killer. Last year, problem drinkers killed 19,000 people in car accidents.

They all live next door to somebody, and most of them wouldn't hurt a butterfly on purpose. But they didn't do it on purpose. They did it because they didn't know what they were doing.

Most of them were very, very drunk. Like eight drinks in two hours. Like scotch for breakfast. And lunch. And dinner.

The problem drinker is the problem. And we have to get him off the road because he can't get himself off.

There are many things that can be done to help him and to help us. Stricter drunk driving laws, stricter law enforcement, scientific breath tests and court supervised treatment among them. There's a huge national highway safety project just beginning that needs you to understand and to help. Help.

Please Take Him

Remember a few years ago when many of the nation's college basketball coaches were threatening to write their Congressman over the pros (American Basketball Association) raiding their campuses for talent.

Wanna bet there wouldn't be a word said if UCLA junior Bill Walton signs a pro contract before the first ball is dribbled next season?

The way Walton has dominated their game this season, college coaches ought to be digging into their piggy banks to chip in what they can toward an offer big enough to get him off the UCLA campus and onto an NBA roster.

NU Really No. 1

In fact, The Walton Gang has made basketball so uninteresting this season that in figuring up the Big Eight all-sports standings the other day we forgot to include basketball in the listings.

Overlooking basketball, we listed the Huskers in second place in the all-sports chart in this space Tuesday. One would hardly think that a tie for sixth in basketball could move you from second to first, but it does.

With the four spring sports remaining, the Huskers lead the all-sports standings with 28½ points, followed by Oklahoma State and Colorado with 29½ each, Missouri 30, Oklahoma 31, Iowa State 33, Kansas 33½ and Kansas State 38.

Watch The Rebounds

Chicago White Sox manager Gene Tanner is telling this story about the power of his hitting star, Dick Allen:

"Mickey Lolich was pitching for the Tigers and Allen hit a ball straight back through the box. Lolich had come all the way down on one knee and it was a good thing he had because the ball almost took the button off the top of his cap. Mickey stayed down on one knee for about two minutes before getting up.

"When he went to the dugout after the inning was over the Tigers asked him why he stayed down so long. Mickey told 'em: 'That ball was hit so hard that I figured it would hit in the back of the head on the rebound from the centerfield fence.'"

AAA Softball Remains At Ballard

Don Smith, director of the Lincoln Parks and Recreation Department, scotches rumors that his office was trying to move Lincoln's AAA Softball League.

Rumors circulating this spring had Smith trying to move the highly competitive league from its home in Northeast Lincoln (Ballard Field) to the Mundy Diamonds.

"I heard that report also," Smith says, "But I don't know where it got started because there was never any truth to it."

Longevity In Coaching

If Missouri's Hi Simmons, Iowa State's Cap Timm, Nebraska's Tony Sharpe and Kansas' Floyd Temple can be used as examples, the safest sport to coach in the Big Eight as far as job security is concerned is baseball.

Timm is in his 35th season, Simmons in his 34th year, Sharpe in his 27th and Temple in his 20th as conference play gets under way this weekend.

Two of those coaching veterans will be facing each other Friday and Saturday at the NU Diamond when Sharpe's Huskers and Timm's Cyclones clash in a three-game set.

ECOFFEY HURT IN SPILL

Leading Jockey Suffers Broken Collarbone

... CONDITION SAID 'SATISFACTORY'

Grand Island—Fonner Park's leading jockey, Fred Ecoffey, was listed in satisfactory condition at St. Francis Hospital here after suffering a broken collarbone while riding Do Whacky in the fourth race.

According to racing secretary Dean Williams, Ecoffey was riding the 7-year-old brown gelding by Platte County out of Regal Favor on the outside as the pack came to the quarter pole on the final turn and tried to bring Do Whacky in to the rail.

Do Whacky clipped the heels of Groundpounder and fell, throwing Ecoffey and breaking his clavicle. The horses and other riders were reportedly uninjured.

Ecoffey was taken to the hospital and returned to the track during the seventh race, but started vomiting blood and was taken back for further tests.

A hospital spokesman said Ecoffey was still undergoing tests and was listed in "satisfactory condition" late Tuesday night.

But the top jockey at Fonner Park the past three years will undoubtedly miss the rest of the Ponner season, according to officials.

The dark-brown 5-year-old gelding by Creteman or Futuramatic out of Wise Billing owned by W. A. Morris returned $10.60, $5.60 and $4.60 to backers in the crowd of 3,633.

Village Kid, ridden by Daniel Switzer, placed for $6.80 and $5.00 while D.K.'s Lad, with Raymond Hancock in the saddle, showed for $4.20.

NU Golfers In Second At Galveston

Galveston, Tex. — Nebraska golfers Rick Schultz, Steve King and Larry Schmidt each recorded a two-over-par 74 here Tuesday at the Galveston Country Club to pace the Huskers to a second-place tie with Tulsa in the Galveston Invitational golf tournament.

Oral Roberts leads the team field after the first day of the four-day meet with a total score of 294. NU and Tulsa each have 297.

Oral Roberts' Dave Barr, Colorado's George Kelley and Tulsa's Ron Streck took opening-day honors with 71 each.

Colorado is currently in fifth with 312.

Siegel-Seidel Matchup Will Headline Cage All-Star Contest

By RANDY YORK
Prep Sports Writer
Another Bob Siegel-Rick Seidel matchup

That's likely what will materialize Aug. 17 in the Nebraska Coaches Association All-Star High School Basketball Game at Lincoln's Pershing Auditorium.

Siegel, three times a Lincoln Sunday Journal and Star all-state selection, has been selected to play for Crete coach Walt Harris' South team.

Seidel, the state's leading scorer who led Sidney into the Class B finals earlier this month, will play for North coach Alden Johnson of Lincoln High.

The Class B pair, named to the Sunday Journal and Star Super State first team, headlines the 24-players selected by an 18-man committee of coaches headed by North Platte athletic director Merle Bauer.

A third Sunday Journal and Star Super Stater, Crete's Randy Wenz, will play for the South. His high school teammate, Class B all-stater Tim Edwards, will also play for his coach in the all-star contest.

Two Super Staters, Lincoln Northeast's Terry Novak and Boys Town's Fred Anzures, will not play in the fifth annual all-star game.

Novak is only a junior and therefore ineligible to compete. Anzures, who led Boys Town to the Metropolitan Conference championship this past season, elected to forego the opportunity.

Anzures was extended an invitation to participate in the contest, according to coaching association officials, but declined in favor of spending the summer in his native Albuquerque, N.M.

Joining Siegel, Edwards and Wenz on the "explosive" South squad are three more first team Sunday Journal and Star all-state selections — Beatrice's Bill

Roach (Class A), Cozad's Kert McKeone (Class B) and Milford's Larry Heyen (Class C).

Other Rebel all-stars are Steve Curtiss and Loren Killion, the high-scoring Kearney duo, Rick Samuelson of Lincoln East, Omaha Westside defensive expert Bob Poage, Omaha Central's Dennis Forrest and Class D standout David Schnuelle of Diller.

The North team isn't exactly a "no name" team such as the Miami Dolphin defense, but Lincoln High's Johnson acknowledges a general lack of state-wide familiarity with his Yankee team.

"We may lack the superstar, but we have 12 all-stars and what could be a great deal of balance," says Johnson, who has one of his own players, Steve Harris, on the club.

in the district tournament finals earlier this month.

He hopes that player, Class A all-stater Tom Westover from

It would help complement the inside scoring ability of Seidel, Arcadia's Ed Gogan, Clarkson's Jesse Kucera, Loup City's Don Mroczek and Chardon's Kevin Moore.

Gogan (Class D) and Mroczek (Class C) were Sunday Journal and Star first team all-state selections. So were Seidel, Howells guard Steve Baumert (Class C) Westover and Columbus' Paul Potter (Class A).

Other Yankee team members are Omaha Tech guard J. J. Collins, Fremont guard Mark Hansen, Harris, Kucera, Moore and Mike Scanlon of Omaha Northwest.

'Third Body' Necessity For Amateur Sports?

WASHINGTON (AP) — A special House subcommittee was told Tuesday there is a need for a "third body" to assume leadership in amateur sports in the United States.

The subcommittee is holding hearings on two bills designed to end the controversy between the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Amateur Athletic Union.

George Bisacca, a Fairfield, Conn., lawyer and counsel for the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference conceded there have been abuses of power by the NCAA and the AAU.

"There is a need for a third body to take this issue away from the two opposing forces," Bisacca said.

Earlier, Bisacca told the committee the "problem really is outside the purview of Congress."

Brewers May Be Without Beer Sales

Milwaukee (AP) — Milwaukee, the self-proclaimed beer capital of the world, may have to do without beer sales in County Stadium when the Brewers open their home baseball season April 10.

Wisconsin Atty. Gen. Robert Warren said Tuesday Wisconsin Sportservice, which has a 25 year contract to supply concessions at the Stadium, cannot legally hold a beer license because its corporation officers are out of state residents.

The lawyer suggested Congress establish a commission which would have sole authority to grant the title of "U.S. national team." It would be a federal offense to use the title without consent of the commission, he said.

But the subcommittee members were not impressed with Bisacca's plan.

"Frankly," Rep. James G. O'Hara, D-Mich., said, "I have a little problem with your suggestion."

Under questioning by Rep. Peter A. Peyser, R-N.Y., Bisacca made his comment about "a third body."

High jumper Chris Dunn of Colgate told the subcommittee he was forced to forego the recent U.S.-Soviet Union track and field meet in Richmond, Va., because of possible NCAA sanctions against his classmates.

"If I were to compete Colgate would, according to the NCAA bylaws, be forced to penalize me by removing my college eligibility for all remaining NCAA competitions," Dunn said.

"If Colgate did not take such action, then Colgate would be in violation of the NCAA bylaws and subject to disciplinary action. It is possible that this action could entail a probationary period in which case all of its athletes would be ineligible for NCAA championship competition."

Dunn also told the subcommittee that athletes are "disgusted" with the AAU.

"I've been to track meets and on tours with the AAU where the accommodations have been poor," he said. "What the facilities and accommodations really are are not always what the AAU says they will be."

At last summer's Olympic games in Munich, where he competed for the U.S., there was a "general strong feeling of resentment about the way athletes are treated," Dunn said.

Briscoe Eyes Monzon Fight

Philadelphia (UPI) — Bennie Briscoe gave notice Monday night that he is ready for a return match with world champion middleweight Carlos Monzon.

The 159-pound Philadelphian, who lost a 15-round decision to Monzon last November, was in control the entire way as he scored a third round TKO over North American middleweight champion Art Hernandez of Omaha.

Hernandez, 160, went down for the mandatory eight count in the second round after Briscoe hit him with a solid right to the jaw. Hernandez got up, blood flowing from his nose, and stumbled into another solid right.

Referee Pete Tomasco stopped the fight early in the third round after Briscoe stormed his opponent and beat him to the canvas with a flurry of punches.

NSA Meeting Set

The annual meeting of the Nebraska Softball Association will be held in Lincoln Saturday and Sunday, according to the state commissioner, O. W. Bill Smith.

On Saturday the state board of directors will meet to hear bids for all state tournaments for 1973. On Sunday a rules training clinic will be held for coaches, umpires, and players. Also on Sunday the various awards for 1972 will be presented.

Mat League Slated

The final organization meeting for the Workingman's Wrestling League is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at the Eastern Recreation Center, 6130 Adams.

Husker Gymnasts' Hopes Dim

"It doesn't look good..." Nebraska gymnastics coach Francis Allen reported Monday on the chances of his Cornhusker squad receiving an invitation to the NCAA finals in Eugene, Ore., next week.

Nebraska finished second to champion Iowa State in the Big Eight Conference meet last weekend in Lincoln, scoring 313 points.

The national field is restricted to conference champions which score 300 points or more. If a league titlist fails to reach that major figure, runnersup from other conferences which did total 300 or more are added.

"We don't have the totals from all the conference meets yet," Allen observed, "and there are a couple of leagues which won't hold their meet until this weekend. But, it looks like they'll need to have three openings to get down to us."

Iowa, the runnerup in the Big Ten meet totaled 317 points, while defending national champion Southern Illinois was edged for the Eastern Independent League title despite scoring 315 points.

Allen admits he can look back on the Big Eight meet and see where Nebraska might well have scored another four or five points to top the Iowa and Southern Illinois totals.

"But, I certainly can't complain. Our total was the best showing all season. When you lose to the national champions by just 17 points -- I expect Iowa State to win it all -- you can't be disappointed."

Iowa State, which won the NCAA crown two years ago and was the runnerup last season, totaled 330 points while capturing the Big Eight title.

"Southern Illinois won the nationals last year with less than 316 points," Allen remembers, "and Iowa State took the title the year before with 319

TREAD WEAR EXPECTANCY

Because of variable driving habits and road conditions under which tires are used, it is impractical for Montgomery Ward, and conceivably misleading to our customers, to guarantee any specific number of months or miles of tread wear. We can, however, indicate the wear potential we have built into our tires in terms of service in normal family use. If a Riverside tire wears down to the tread wear indicators during the Tread Wear Expectancy, Montgomery Ward will upon presentation of the tire and evidence of date of purchase replace the tire for the then current price less the following dollar allowance.

Tread Wear Expectancy	Tread Wearout Allowance

Red Violations Claimed As Bombing Is Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House, in defending continued American bombing missions in Cambodia, said Tuesday North Vietnam is violating the Paris agreement by not withdrawing its forces from that country.

Press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, asked to cite President Nixon's constitutional authority for continuing military operations in Cambodia, replied "Communist forces have not respected the unilateral ceasefire" proclaimed by the Lon Nol government, and as a consequence, the Phnom Penh regime had asked for air support.

In addition, he said, "Communist forces are conducting offensive operations." and North Vietnam is in violation of Article 20 of the Paris accord governing withdrawal of outside troops.

Pressed further to cite Nixon's constitutional authority, Ziegler said he was "not prepared to address in any more specifics" on the Cambodian situation.

Asked if there were any limits on potential involvement—such as possible introduction of American ground forces—the White House spokesman said, "We would hope that the Communist forces in Cambodia would adhere to" the Paris agreement and observe the ceasefire.

Should there be a ceasefire, he added, the bombing unquestionably would be halted immediately. Asked how long it might continue in the absence of a halt to ground fighting, he said, "I am not prepared to set any timetable."

When a questioner said some members of the Senate fear a Vietnam type future involvement of American forces in Cambodia, Ziegler replied that, with the Vietnam war ending, the administration "is not motivated nor looking toward" involvement in a similar struggle elsewhere.

Meanwhile, Sen. J. W. Fulbright called on the Nixon administration to explain the continuing bombing.

"Unless a full, forthcoming statement is made shortly," the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman said, "I see no course other than a full public hearing with the secretary of state to explore this subject in depth."

He called on the administration to make a public statement based on these three questions:

—What are American forces doing in Cambodia? Whom are we striking? Whom are we supplying? How many Americans are in Cambodia, in or out of uniform?

—Why are we carrying on these activities in Cambodia? Are we protecting American forces there? Are we there to support Lon Nol and the form of government he represents? Has the Executive Branch made some vague "commitment" to Lon Nol?

—By what authority is the United States carrying on its military activities in Cambodia? By some wild stretch of the imagination has the administration projected SEATO as a legal basis for our military presence? Does the President assert—as the kings of old—that as commander in chief he can order American forces anywhere for any purpose that suits him?

GOP Senators Ask For Dean Testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Senate Republican leaders said Tuesday they hope President Nixon will reverse himself and let his lawyer John W. Dean III testify at the Senate's investigation of the Watergate incident.

Sens. John Tower of Texas and Norris Cotton of New Hampshire spoke out the same day the top Democrat and Republican on a congressional subcommittee asked Nixon to permit Dean to testify under strict ground rules at hearings on executive privilege.

Tower, who is chairman of the Senate GOP Policy Committee, told newsmen "It's in the best interest of the White House that the whole thing be bared and cleaned up."

Cotton, the chairman of the Senate Republican Conference, said that in nearly half a century of politics he has found it is poor tactics to prolong and drag out "some kind of mystery or scandal."

The faster it is gotten out of the way, Cotton said, the better off the country, the President, and the Republican Party will be.

Reps. William S. Moorhead, D-Pa., and John N. Erlenborn, R-Ill., wrote Nixon that at the hearings on executive privilege no questions would be put to Dean that would "relate to his role in the investigation of possible involvement of White House personnel in the Watergate incident."

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald L. Warren said the request had been received "and is being studied carefully." He said it would "be premature to comment at this time."

Moorhead is chairman of the House government information subcommittee and Erlenborn is ranking Republican on the panel.

Meantime, at a news conference, they released a study by the Library of Congress research service saying Nixon's first four years produced 19 instances of executive privilege being used to deny information or testimony to congressional committees—four by the President personally, the other 15 by officials of his administration.

Moorhead termed this "a new one-term record in government by secrecy." He said the Eisenhower administration "holds the unenviable record—so far—with 34 instances of the use of executive privilege in two terms."

According to the study, President Kennedy used executive privilege once plus three cases where officials of his administration denied data to congressional panels, while President Johnson never personally exercised the privilege although officials of his administration refused information on two occasions.

In asking for Dean's testimony, Moorhead and Erlenborn said it would be limited to a discussion of the executive privilege issue and matters related to Dean's role in handling department and agency requests for invocation of the privilege by Nixon.

In a letter dated last Friday, they wrote to Nixon: "No questions would be put to Mr. Dean that would in any way impinge on his confidential relationship with you, or any discussions, conversations or memoranda on this subject that may have passed between you."

In releasing the letter, they said hearings would open next Tuesday on Erlenborn's bill that would define the scope of presidential power to withhold information from Congress. Erlenborn said it would protect a president's contacts with his aides but would not cover discussions between such aides and those outside the White House.

The legislation would spell out the limits of executive privilege. Congress would assert its right to all information except when a president invokes executive privilege.

Congress Is Advised To Ponder Cost Freeze

WASHINGTON (AP) — An economist advised Congress Tuesday to consider freezing food prices and returning to general mandatory controls on wages and prices.

Barry Bosworth of the Brookings Institution also suggested a temporary income tax credit while food prices are being brought down, to ease the strain of family budgets and reduce pressure for big, permanent wage increases.

"I believe that we are in the initial stages of a wage-price spiral equally as damaging as that of 1968-1971," Bosworth told the House Banking Committee.

The panel is considering legislation to extend President Nixon's economic control authority, now scheduled to expire April 30. Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., and others introduced legislation Tuesday providing a general freeze on prices.

"The notion that food price increases reflect excessive market power by retailers and middlemen is a myth," Bosworth testified.

"They follow directly from major price increases of raw farm products at the wholesale level. These prices in turn reflect past government actions to restrict farm production, a high level of exports associated with poor growing weather abroad, and the Russian wheat sale."

He said the administration's move to hold down food prices by increasing supply are sound, but came late, and indications are that food prices will continue to rise all year.

Bosworth said he doubts that labor, faced with food price increases that reached an annual rate of 56 per cent in the last three months, would accept a return to a 5.5 per cent wage increase guideline unless some compensating steps were taken.

The tax credit, he said, could be scaled so that it would benefit most those low and middle income groups which have suffered most from the rising price tags at the grocery.

Joining Bosworth in terming Phase 3 controls a failure and predicting further inflation was Gardner C. Means, an economist who has intermittently served in government since the New Deal of the 1930's.

Means urged the committee to extend control powers, but at the same time set wage-price guidelines.

He said administrative inflation increases in prices and wages in those industries where production is most concentrated and competition is at a minimum has been a major element in pushing prices up while unemployment is still high.

"Phase 3 is clearly a failure and cannot be expected to prevent serious administrative inflation," Means said.

B52 Bombers Hit Cambodia For 21st Day

HONOLULU (AP) — U.S. B52 bombers struck targets in Cambodia Tuesday for the 21st straight day, including at least three attacks 12 miles south of Phnom Penh which rattled windows in the capital city.

The continued U.S. bombing was announced in Honolulu by the U.S. Pacific Military Command in a terse statement which provided no details of the action.

Military sources said, however, that the operations continued at the same steady pace established when U.S. bombing attacks were resumed three weeks ago after a brief respite.

Reports from Phnom Penh said the strikes south of Phnom Penh were aimed at suspected concentrations of antigovernment forces in a region of swamps and rice paddies.

In other action, the Cambodian army announced the fall of the hilltop village of Trapeang Thnot, only 10 miles from Phnom Penh Airport.

Intelligence reports said several thousand antigovernment troops were concentrated in the area.

Two government battalions had been virtually surrounded in the village for several days. The army's communique said the government troops abandoned the village Monday night.

Plant Calls For Pollution Curbs

City Council candidate J. James Plant Tuesday called for more stringent city control of pollution standards.

Plant contended that more anti-pollution measures are needed in order to maintain the high quality and standard of living Lincolinites now enjoy. Additionally, he suggested that some of the city's share of revenue-sharing funds be allotted to the city's Park and Recreation Department.

Robinson Gets Peterson Nod

City Councilman Harry Peterson has endorsed council candidate John Robinson.

Peterson, one of the three outgoing members on the council, urged support for Robinson saying, "Having served on the council for the past four years, I know the demands of the job." "I know John Robinson and he can do the job," Peterson said, adding that Robinson has been a member of the city's Goals and Policies Committee and the Open Door Health Clinic.

Childs Urges Better Busing

City Council candidate Nancy Childs Tuesday called for greater utilization of the city's new bus fleet.

Mrs. Childs suggested that service be improved on Sundays and that at least one nightly bus run be instituted to transport people to the downtown area.

She also suggested that the city consider transporting people from public school events held at Pershing Municipal Auditorium.

Peterson For Aid By Area

Division of the city's revenue-sharing money should be made on a "reasonable, equitable and geographic basis," City Council Candidate Norman Peterson said Tuesday.

Peterson said special consideration should be given to using the funds for such items as human services, the Stevens Creek situation and for general traffic control.

He contended that the money should not be all spent on capital improvements.

Robinson After Drug Pushers

The city's drug problem will not go away, City Council candidate John Robinson contended Tuesday.

Robinson said city officials must "face up to the problem of illegal drug use in Lincoln."

If he is elected, Robinson said he will seek cooperation with the School Board "to see what can be done to stop trafficking in drugs within the schools."

Elimination Of 'Outhouses' In Nevada Bill

Carson City, Nev. (UPI) — A bill eliminating an old law that schools in Nevada have "outhouses" was before the governor Tuesday.

Assemblyman Jack Schofield of Las Vegas explained the bill would not mean schools don't need bathrooms but would simply delete an old law for "two-holer outhouses."

Muggy Wants More Answers

City Council candidate Robert Muggy said Tuesday he is reconsidering his stand favoring construction of the Northeast Radial.

"After listening to both the pro and con, I have decided that before I would vote any more funds, I must have answers to many questions," he said.

Such questions Muggy said he would like to see answered include:

—will federal funds be available?

—has an environmental impact study been undertaken?

—have alternative routes or other street improvement possibilities been explored?

Denney Lauds Street Repair

The city's planned accelerated street repair and reconstruction program was lauded Tuesday by City Council candidate Max Denney.

Denney commented that the streets have definitely suffered from a bad Nebraska winter, adding, "The fact that no additional bond issues, assessments or increase in the mill levy will be required to carry out this program is good news."

Kitchen Nixes Mall Expense

If a decision is made to construct a downtown mall on O from 10th to 15th, the businessmen should pay the cost — not the public, Council candidate Charles Kitchen said Tuesday.

He said those downtown businessmen should make the decision on the mall, even if the mall "would be an inconvenience to the general public."

Bailey: Issue Is Unavoidable

Regardless of the outcome of a vote on the charter amendment on approval of road projects, City Council members will not be able to avoid the issue of the Northeast Radial, council candidate Sue Bailey charged Tuesday.

The proposed amendment will require unanimous council approval of any road projects costing more than $15 million. If the unanimous vote is not attained — the question will go to the vote of the people.

Projected cost of the radial is $30 million.

Many mutual funds have withdrawal plans for doing this on a regular basis, but the investor under such plans assumes the risk that he may outlive the actuarial averages.

But it is sheer illusion to assume that retired folks must choose between high yielding conventional bonds and low yielding prime growth stocks. Through current anomalies in the supply and demand situathe supply and demand situation, several seasoned closed-end investment funds listed on the New York Stock Exchange, including General American Investors, Lehman, Dominick Fund and Tricontinental are quoted at substantial discounts below their net asset value, and have in effect a negative "load."

EVERYBODY'S MONEY:

Effects Of Devaluation Not Fully Understood

By Merryle S. Rukeyser

My mailbag reflects lingering public confusion concerning the practical consequences to typical Americans of the second devaluation of the dollar within 18 months.

Merryle Rukeyser

Projections

Devaluation, a side effect of inflation, makes it more difficult for private citizens and companies to project financial contracts, including leases, mortgages and bond issues, far to the future.

Devaluation, a side effect of inflation, makes it more difficult for private citizens and companies to project financial contracts, including leases, mortgages and bond issues, far to the future.

Accordingly, new methods are developing whereby decision-makers undertake to protect themselves against uncertainty as to what will be the purchasing power of the dollar in the more distant future. Alert landlords are nowadays disinclined to make conventional, long term fixed dollar leases for rental property.

It has become fashionable on commercial properties for landlords to require tenants to bear their share of any future increase in real estate taxes above the base period, and recently sophisticated owners have also extended the tax escalation clause to leases on apartments.

Inflation Hedges

Similarity in life insurance contracts, there has been growing investor interest in inflation-protected annuities and variable annuities. There is an effort to provide protection in purchasing property instead of merely in a fixed number of dollars.

One widely misunderstood aspect is how older persons, depending on dividends, interest and payments, should conduct their affairs. Some go-go counselors have in effect a negative "load" on the client's investment.

Such funds selling at discount pay out their dividend and interest earnings in regular distributions, and once a year supplement such disbursement with a dividend on realized capital gains, if any.

Thus on the basis of current performance, these investment company shares can be bought to yield as much or more than good corporate bonds and in addition offer such hedge against

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE--Here's how to work it:

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
